GRAND JURY AFTER FAKE FARO GANG

District Attorney Pelletier to-day brought all of the forces of the county prosecutor's office and the Boston and Cambridge police together in a campaign to wind up and punish the Boston "bunco syndicate" which swindled George W. Coleman, the Cambridge bank bookkeeper, of $10,000, wrecked the ban kand fleeced Greater Boston men out of at least $200,000.

The District Attorney began the gathering of evidence against the gang to-day and will lay all of the facts before the Grand Jury, which convenes next Monday. At his request Chief Joseph Dugan of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation assigned Inspectors McGarr and Armstrong from headquarters to aid the District Attorney.

Dugan After Gamblers.

"The entire corps of inspectors of this department is at the command of the District Attorney to clean up this bunch of grafters," said Captain Dugan. "He can have all of the men he finds necessary."

Chief Inspector Patrick J. Hurley of the Cambridge police was also called upon by the District Attorney to assist in the campaign against the "bunco syndicate." Cambridge is outside of Mr. Pelletier's jurisdiction, but Captain Hurley, who has been investigating the swindlers' said upon Coleman in the National City Bank case, volunteered his own assistance and that of the Cambridge police department.

District Attorney Pelletier appeared at his office to-day determined to dig deep

LORDS GIVEN DEFIANCE BY THE MINISTRY

LONDON, March 2.—The influence of the House of Lords on financial legislation is already barred. This was made clear this afternoon by Reginald McKenna, navy Minister, in the debate on temporary financial measures.

"I wish the House to understand once and for all," he said, "that whatever course the government pursues it will not pursue a course laid down by the Lords."

A visitor in the gallery cried, "Down With the Lords," and was promptly ejected.

John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish party, has sent a letter to Thomas B. Fitzpatrick of Boston, treasurer of the American Irish League, acknowledging receipt of $5,000 for the Irish home rule fund.

Mr. Redmond points out that the Tory Unionists, aided by T. M. Healy and William O'Brien, have entered into a compact to force another general election as quickly as possible with a determination to bankrupt the Irish party.

This they can do by contesting every seat in Ireland, no matter how strong the Nationalist majority may be, so that the Nationalist treasury may be swamped with election expenses.

O'Brien has a large private fortune, gained through his marriage with the daughter of Banker Raffolovich of Paris. With his personal wealth, aided by the two Healys, and the Irish Tories, a ruinous campaign against the Irish party can be entered upon, if the present game succeeds.

Mr. Redmond predicts another general election in Great Britain and Ireland before many weeks have passed. In view of the Irish attitude in Parliament and their power in the present situation, in which the life of the Liberal party depends on their support, this prediction is regarded here as significant.

"SLAVERY" ELECTION BILL WITH GOVERNOR

GUTHRIE, Okla., March 2.—The Taylor election bill, disqualifying all whose fathers and grandfathers were slaves from voting on constitutional amendments, was today presented to the Governor, having been passed by the House.

$20,000 GEM THEFT REPORT AT CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, March. 2—One of the biggest jewelry robberies in this city in years was reported to the police when Mrs. Isham Hornsby notified Inspector Boardman, chief of detectives, that diamonds and other valuables worth between $15,000 and $20,000 had been stolen last night from her residence, No. 1,715 I street, Northwest.

ENGINE CREW DEAD IN B. & O. CRASH

FLORA, Ill., March 2.—Baltimore & Ohio westbound passenger train No. 3, which left Cincinnati at 9 o'clock last night for St. Louis, ran into an extra freight in the yards here early to-day. Engineer Lynch and his fireman of the passenger train were killed.

THREE WOMEN RESCUED FROM FIRE PERIL

Thrilling rescues of three women by Lieutenant John Merrill and Hoseman "Jim" Stout of Chemical Engine No. 8 were features of a fire which occurred shortly after noon to-day in the four-story brick tenement house at No. 159 West Broadway, South Boston. The rescued women, who were taken down the stairs from the fourth floor, were Mrs. Mary Cox, Mrs. Ryan and Julia Cox.

On the second floor lives Dr. Walter Cavanaugh and family. Mrs. Cavanaugh was partly overcome by the smoke which filled her apartments. Mrs. Ryan lives on the third floor, and she, with Mrs. and Miss Cox, attempted to save some of their valuables and fell a prey to the smoke, being partly overcome.

Rushing through the blinding smoke in the entryway, the firemen reached the prostrate women and carried them to the street. The firemen were roundly applauded by those who witnessed their act.

The fire started in the dry goods store of Max Weinbaum on the ground floor. The damage was $2,000.

14 PASSENGERS HURT IN CAR COLLISIONS

Fog Responsible for Two Wrecks Near Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, March 2.—In a collision to-day between two trolley cars at Fifth and State streets, Camden, in the fog, seven passengers were injured, two of them probably fatally. Seven were also injured when a local train on the Reading Railroad crashed head-on into a freight car north of Wayne Junction.

LILLIAN RUSSELL TO SEND THAT PORTRAIT

SIOUX CITY, Ia., March 2.—Lillian Russell intends to give a painting of herself to the Iowa Historical Society in spite of protests. Two weeks ago Curator Harlan of the Historical Society requested her to give the organization her picture for its Hall of Fame. Of course, Miss Russell, being a true Iowan, born in Clinton in 18—, well, let that pass—immediately said she would send the portrait. Then the W. C. T. U. objected.

"That must not be," it muttered.

"It shall," came from Miss Russell in her best defiant heroine style.

The result is the actress is having a New York artist paint the picture.

Miss Russell was Helen Leonard in Clinton.

NEW HAVEN RAILROAD IS SUED FOR $50,000

NEW HAVEN, March 2.—William C. Hoxie of New London has sued the New Haven road for $50,000 damages to test the new national employers' liability law. Hoxie was terribly maimed in a collision at Hopedale, R. I., two years ago.

RUSSELL ADMITS LIKENESS

William C. Russell to-day admitted in the East Cambridge Court that the man who claims to be his brother and seeks half of the $500,000 estate which the former now holds, in many points bears a physical resemblance to himself.

The witness stood face to face with the claimant, Daniel Blake Russell, as he gave his testimony. They looked into each others' eyes. Their hands touched on the rail of the witness stand. For several minutes they faced each other. It was a dramatic scene and it thrilled the spectators who jammed the court room.

Attorney Simpson for the claimant brought the two men together after he had secured from William C. Russell the admission that he could not remember much of what was said at their first interview and that he formed his conclusion that the claimant was not his brother because of what he observed rather than from what he said. He also admitted that after the trial started Mr. Almy, who was present at the interview, read to him from notes taken at the interview and that he didn't remember all that was said in the notes.

Meet Dare to Face.

"I don't think you have observed this claimant very carefully, Mr. Russell," said Attorney Simpson at this point. "Dan, step this way."

The claimant arose from his seat and moved toward the witness stand. The two men were within two feet of each other. They gazed into each others eyes. As the examination progressed, Dan put his hand on the witness rail. William placed his beside it. Their hands touched.

Attorney Simpson then asked:

Q.—Look at the claimant's eyebrows. Had you observed them before? A.—No.

Q.—Are they like yours? A.—Yes.

Q.—What color would you call his eyes? A.—Mixed gray and hazel.

Q.—You testified that your brother Daniel Blake Russell had brown hazel eyes when he left home? A.—Yes.

Q.—Observe his hair? A.—It is dark mixed with gray.

Q.—Has it ever occurred to you that the change from brown to dark might have been caused by the years which have elapsed and the use of hair oils and artificial preparations? A.—No.

Q.—You have said that one reason why you did not think that this claimant was your brother was that his neck was too large. Is it larger than your father's. A.—No. I should say it was about the same size.

Brothers Touch Hands.

Q.—You have testified that the claimant had very large hands. Have you examined them? A.—No.

Q.—Will you examine them now? (The claimant put his hands on the witness rail and William C. Russell put his beside it. As he did so their hands touched. "I do not think it is so very large," replied William C. Russell.

Q.—Mr. Russell, you have spoken of the claimant having very large feet. Have you observed them? A.—I should say they were not extra large.

Q.—What size do you wear, Mr. Russell? A.—Eight and a half.

Q.—Do you think the claimant's feet are larger than yours? A.—No, I do not know that they are. (The claimant claims to wear an 8).

Q.—Was it because you believed that the claimant had large hands and feet that you were aided in thinking he was not your brother? A.—Yes.

Q.—Observe the claimant's complexion. A fairer or darker than yours? A.—About the same.

Q.—Observe the ears, that they have the peculiarity of not lying close to the head—do they in this respect resemble the ears of your brother, Daniel Blake Russell? A.—I cannot say.

Recalls First Interview.

When questioned about the first interview with the claimant, William C. Russell admitted that he was alone with Ferdinand B. Almy and Miss Sarah Almy for a half an hour before Daniel Blake Russell was brought in. He said that the interview lasted one hour, and that Almy, Miss Almy, Attorney Upton and himself were present at the interview.

All that he could remember of what was said was that he had said to the claimant, "You may be Daniel Russell, but I never saw you before."

Didn't Seek Brother.

Court resumed after a ten-minutes' delay, and William C. Russell, possessor of the Russell estate for which Daniel Blake Russell is fighting, resumed the witness stand for cross-examination by Attorney Simpson.

Q.—Mr. Russell, soon after your father's

MRS. TAYLOR, WHO GREETED COLEMAN ON HIS RELEASE

LITTLE LOOT FOR ROBBERS IN BIG RAID

Burglars raided Cambridge early to-day and left a trail of stores broken open, but failed to get much valuable plunder. In the midst of the burglar scare, Mrs. Charles Almy, wife of Judge Almy of Cambridge District Court, saw a young man, bareheaded, in the hall of the Almy home, at No. 147 Brattle street. The man fled.

When the police investigated this case, the mystery was exploded by the discovery that a Harvard initiation party had included amateur burglary in the rites of inducting a new member.

The real burglars were not particular what they took. From Abraham Rosenberg of No. 104 Gore street, East Cambridge, they carried away eleven chickens. At Kelly's milk yard on Charles River road they took thirty-nine quarts of milk. They got small quantities of money and merchandise from these stores: Joseph de Modica, No. 159 Broadway; Robert C. Harris, No. 42 Portland street; Edward A. C[illegible]ney, No. 29 Norfolk street; Augustus Stover, No. 22 Norfolk street.

While the burglars were busy, some youths broke into Harvard grammar school, defaced the walls and turned the pictures upside down.

Mrs. Jane N. Morgan, wife of J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., of New York, is remembered in the will of her father, Henry Sturgis Grew, of Hyde Park, which was allowed to-day in Dedham Probate Court. She gets $59,083.33. Mrs. Elizabeth S. Bell of Boston and Edward W. Grew of Hyde Park, two other children, get the same amount. Mr. Grew was prominent in Boston and New York society circles and left an estate of $354,500, half of which goes to his widow.

CHICAGO, March 2.—Hogs went to $10.10 at the stock yards to-day. Cattle followed the lead and sold 25 cents higher than yesterday. Choice cattle sold at $8.25, medium grades at $7.50. Packers say a general live stock famine is only a matter of a few weeks.

HOW TO BREATHE TO PROlong life—Scientific article of inestimable value to the whole race in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

COLEMAN IS GUEST OF WOMAN

George W. Coleman, the bookkeeper out on $50,000 bail and charged with wrecking the National City Bank of Cambridge, to-day celebrated his freedom by paying an early morning visit to Mrs. Marguerite Taylor, the young widow to whom he has been reported engaged and who was his frequent companion up to the time of his flight from Cambridge.

Coleman left his home at No. 136 Magazine street, at 8 o'clock with his brother, Franklin Coleman. At the Taylor apartments, No. 74 Pleasant street, later in the morning, Mrs. Elizabeth B. McKinley, a neighbor, said that Mrs. Taylor was out. But John Shuman, a cobbler, whose establishment is opposite, said that Coleman visited the Taylor home at 8:15 and had not yet left.

Shuman said that he knew Coleman very well, as he had seen him visit there frequently in his automobile.

Will Not Go Over Books.

The Coleman defence changed front today with the assumption of control by Lawyer H. H. Winslow, who has succeeded John J. Cronin as senior counsel. Cronin volunteered Coleman assistance in straightening out the tangle at the bank and was reported to have advised his client to plead guilty in order to secure leniency. Winslow, however, showed to-day that he intends to fight the case.

He declined to allow Coleman to go to the bank. His reason is that if Coleman went over the books with the receiver and pointed out the alleged discrepancies it would be tantamount to an admission of guilt. Anything he might say to Receiver John L. Bates could properly be used against him on the trial. So ex-Governor Bates and National Bank Examiner Haan will have to straighten out the books themselves.

Examining Pass Books.

Mr. Bates has already examined 650 out of 780 pass books to figure up the shortage in the deposit accounts, and is now at work on the loans and discounts to see if any spurious paper was negotiated at the bank. He has called in all of the loans due or overdue, and has also sent to all other purported borrowers to examine the paper charged against them. All notes not yet due, but found to be good, will be taken up by the Harvard Trust Company, which will pay the receiver their face value and accrued interest.

"It will be a matter of several days before any definite statement can be made," said Mr. Bates to-day. "Every depositor's pass book must be compared with the ledger accounts, and every note must be examined."

FAVOR INAUGURATION DAY LATE IN APRIL

WESTWOOD HOME SWEPT BY FLAME

William A. McGrath's Residence is Damaged $1,500.

The home of William A. McGrath on Washington street, Westwood, was damaged to the extent of $1,500 as the result of a fire started from an overheated furnace in the basement of the building. McGrath, who is a cigar and tobacco dealer in this city, left home early for Boston, leaving the draughts in the furnace open. The Dedham fire department fought the flames.

EX-MAYOR HIBBARD'S ILLNESS ALARMING

Friends Fear His Ailment is of Serious Nature.

Ex-Mayor Hibbard is still confined to his home, and indications are that he will not be able to be about for some time. Privately, the friends of the former Mayor admit that his illness is much graver than is generally supposed, and that the symptoms indicate that he is suffering from a chronic disease that does not yield readily to treatment.

WIDOW AGAIN ON STAND IN DEATH PROBE

Climax of Recital Reached To-Day In Will Fight When Story of Laundry Tragedy Is Rehearsed.

Mrs. Lillian M. Glover took the witness stand in the East Cambridge Probate Court this afternoon, beginning the third day of her dramatic testimony as to the events that led up to and surrounded the murder of her husband in Waltham on November 20 last.

Many remarkable incidents happened in connection with the crime the night Clarence F. Glover was killed. Mrs. Glover figured in some of them. She went to the hospital where her husband lay dying but declined to go up stairs to speak to him. When Mrs. Glover left the stand yesterday she had just reached the point in her story where she was summoned to the hospital, after hearing that her husband had been fatally shot. Her examination was taken up by Lawyer John J. Scott from that point to-day.

Mrs. Glover has denied sharply, emphatically, almost defiantly, that she planned the death of her husband, as she is charged in the attempt to break the Glover will. Although spoken in a low voice, her words fell from her lips with ringing incisiveness. There was a steely flash from her eyes. Her lips hardened, grew white and lost their Cupid curve.

But there was no weakening. Not a tremor of the voice, not a semblance of a tear, not a sign of the usual feminine weakness that one might reasonably expect when a woman is forced to pass through such a fearful ordeal, manifested itself.

Denies Buying Revolver.

This is Mrs. Glover's testimony as it came from her pale lips with the questions that prompted the replies eliminated:

"I have used a revolver. I have shot at a target with a revolver. I have shot at a target with a rifle. I am not a fair shot. I cannot hit a bullseye. I have never hit a bullseye as I remember. If I ever hit a bullseye I think it was accidental.

"Mr. Glover owned revolvers. He kept them all over the house. They were not locked up. I did not have a revolver. I did not buy one. I did not buy any cartridges. I never talked with Mr. Coffey in Iver Johnson's store in Boston. I never went into that store alone. I have gone there with Mr. Glover.

"I did not know the effect of a 22, 32 or 38 calibre revolver, except that one is larger than the other. I do not know

LOWELL NOW THREATENED BY RAGING RIVER

LOWELL, March 2.—Damage from flood threatens Lowell to-day. The Merrimac River is a raging torrent of water. The big river is rising rapidly. Last night it rose more than a foot. To-day more than seven feet of water is pouring over Pawtucket dam.

Work on alterations and improvements in the huge Massachusetts cotton mills was stopped by the rising tide of water. Many men are to-day idle as a result. As yet the operations of the big mills themselves continue without interruption.

Damage is threatening all along the Merrimac valley. Interruptions to work and damage to property are threatened at Nashua and Manchester, N. H.

Reports from the headquarters of the river away up in the foothills of the White Mountains are far from reassuring. The recent rains have melted the snow which lies many feet deep in certain parts of New Hampshire. The thaw continues.

The breaking of the ice is the greatest menace. For scores of miles the river is ice locked. When the water rises higher this ice is bound to break away and come rushing down. Lowell fears such a result as ice jams coupled with floods have done great damage here before and along the entire valley.

VERMONT TOWN IN DANGER OF FLOOD; HOMES DESERTED

SHARON, Vt., March 2.—Considerable damage has been done here on account of the ice in the White River backing up near the Sharon dam and causing the water to flood farmhouses.

The occupants who have vacated their homes are Henry Harrington, George Brown, Alex Joyce, Baxter Roberts and Clinton Burt.

The water on the first floor of these houses is four feet deep and the families were taken out from the second story windows onto the ice and conveyed to a place of safety.

500 PASTORS ASK CUT IN ARMY-NAVY COST

More than 500 ministers of Boston and vicinity of all denominations have signed the petition to Congress asking the government to decrease its military and naval expenses. This matter has been under the charge of the American Peace Society, No. 32 Beacon street. The petition, which will reach Washington to-day, says: "We, ministers of churches and leaders of various religious organizations in Boston and vicinity, constantly made aware of the hard financial struggles of the people, due to greater cost of living, express our approval of the decrease in military and naval expenses recommended by the President in his recent annual message."

LIPKOWSKA VICTOR IN FIGHT OVER MENU

By decree of Judge Richardson in the Superior Court, the management of the Hotel Lenox is forbidden to use the terms "Souffle a la Lipkowska" and "Cup Lydia" on its menu cards. The decision was made on the petition of Mme. Lydia Lipkowska, the Boston Opera Company songstress, for an injunction preventing the use of the terms, which she pronounced an annoyance to her.

RIGID RULES FOR SALOONS IN CHELSEA

The Chelsea License Commission is out with a set of rules to govern the saloon business, the most drastic ever adopted in the State.

After a year of no-license Chelsea will have saloons again after May 1, but under severe restrictions.

The commissioners are Abbott W. Lawrence, William Burns and Herbert Norton. Their first act is to formally ask the Board of Control to give them special officials whose sole business it will be to enforce the liquor laws.

Then the commissioners got down to business with these rules:

Only five licenses are to be granted in the Mill Hill section. There were eleven saloons there in 1908.

Only Thirty Licenses.

Though the city is entitled to thirty-seven licenses, only thirty will be granted. These will be all first and fourth class.

No hotel licenses will be granted because of violations of liquor laws in past years by hotels.

No licenses on the west side of Broadway, between Second and Eleanor streets.

No licenses on the east side of Broadway, between Congress and Eleanor streets.

No licenses to women. No woman can have an interest in a liquor store, except she be the survivor of a license-holder.

No liquor to be sold to women in saloons. Liquor can only be served to women in restaurants in connection with a meal. The meal must be a legitimate meal and not a subterfuge to obtain liquor.

Will Have "Announcers."

Saloons must have ample floor space, so that there shall be no passing of beer at a bar over the heads of others. No double lines of men at a bar.

Each saloon must employ an "announcer." This man's duty will be to announce the departure of electric cars for Lynn and Salem, which are to be no-license cities next year.

The license fee is to be $1,550 instead of $1,375 in 1908.

The commissioners announce that there are many who held licenses in 1908 and other years, whose conduct of saloons was such that they will not be considered.

No licenses, under any circumstances, will be granted to non-residents. All applicants must be bonafide taxpayers and citizens of Chelsea.

MOHAWK ICE GORGE FLOODS ALL HERKIMER

UTICA, N. Y., March 2.—Struggling helplessly against the ravages of a flood which has never been equalled in the history of the Mohawk Valley, thousands of persons residing in and around the village of Herkimer to-day are terror stricken. A brave fight is being made against terrible odds.

The people are without any water for domestic purposes, very generally without heat and a scarcity of food is adding to the seriousness of the situation. State aid has reached the scene and gangs of men spent the entire night blasting in the endeavor to loosen the ice packs which are causing the flood.

Ten miles of the New York Central tracks about Fort Plain are under water, part of that town inundated and the inhabitants are being rescued from their homes by boat. The country from here to St. Johnsonville, seven miles away, is a lake, and at Canajoharie and Palatine Bridge, three miles in the opposite direction, conditions are no better.

The Assembly at Albany passed a resolution directing the Superintendent of Public Works to break up the ice gorge and thus relieve the capital of the threatened danger when the jam at Herkimer is broken.

It is impossible to indicate the extent of the damage, but it will reach several hundred thousand dollars. Judging by conditions to-day, the entire village may be flooded before the water subsides.

The crux of the situation is a point just east of Herkimer, where the tracks of the New York Central and the Utica & Mohawk Valley railway cross West Canada creek. To the north of the Central's tracks the ice is piled high over many acres and between the tracks of the Central and the trolley line it is tightly jammed.

It is possible that the New York Central's long bridge just east of Herkimer may be blown up, as a great ice gorge has formed against it. The streets of Herkimer are streams from eight to ten feet deep. The inhabitants, facing famine, are marooned in the upper floors of their homes and armed deputies patrol the village in boats and on rafts.

The saloons have been closed and a force of more than 100 special deputies sworn in. Conditions to-day resembled martial law.

Scores of imprisoned residents have been rescued from their homes. The Central was forced to-day to send its trains over the West Shore on the opposite side of the river and is making a valiant fight to preserve its tracks.

WOMAN BEGS TO BE SHOT AS SUICIDE FAILS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 2.—Mrs. Agnes McCallan, thirty-five years of age, wife of William McCallan, a chauffeur of No. 1,233 Westminster street, made a desperate attempt to kill herself to-day. She went into the women's retiring room on the second floor of the big Shepard department store here, fired seven shots from a twenty-two calibre revolver into her head and neck, tried to reload the revolver, and when on her way to the hospital begged the surgeon to kill her.

A panic was caused in the great department store when many of the women customers and girl clerks heard the fusillade of shots. Screams rent the air and many made attempts to run down stairs, while others from the floor below were just as determined to run up to see what was the matter.

Rumors flew and a crowd soon gathered, made larger each moment as the police came and then the ambulance.

When Mrs. McCallan was carried from the store and to the ambulance of the Rhode Island Hospital, she cried out to the surgeon as they hurried away: "I certainly made a poor job of it. I wanted so much to die, I want to die, O, let me die, please! Won't you kill me!"

Why Mrs. McCallan was bent on self-destruction is not known yet. The police began an investigation. They made every effort to find her husband to see what light he could throw upon her act.

At the hospital the surgeons began probing for the hail of bullets which she had shot into herself. They could not at that time further question her. They said that they believed that she had some chance for recovery.

Q.—Why? A.—I did not recognize the handwriting and did not know any one there.

Q.—Mr. Russell, Letter Carriers Johnson and Boyle have testified that between November 1, 1908, and May 1, 1909, other letters addressed to you were returned to the postoffice at Melrose unopened. Did you order the return of them. A.—I will not swear that I did not.

Statement by Britain on the Lama's Plight.

LONDON—The plight of the Dalai Lama of Tibet, who fled to India when Chinese troops invested Lhassa, was the subject of an official statement made in the Commons to-day. On arriving at Darjeeling, the statement said, the Lama complained that the Chinese had broken their promise not to bring more than 1,000 troops to Lhassa. Fighting, he said, occurred at only one point, sixty being killed. On receiving this complaint Great Britain communicated with China and was given satisfactory assurances.

Triumph for Parseval V.

The Parseval V. is the smallest non-rigid balloon that has yet been constructed. It is only thirty meters long and is steered by an aeroplane-shaped apparatus which is fixed in front.

LABOR WAR IS DEMANDED BY UNION CHIEFS

PHILADELPHIA, March 2.—George H. Earle, representative of the city on the directorate of the rapid transit company, to-day shattered what feeble hopes of setting the car strike that remained after the company's ultimatum.

"The strike is over," he declared, announcing that he expected no further conferences with the peace-making merchants of the city. "They cannot stampede me," were his words.

Earle, it was, according to good authority, who induced the other directors and Mayor John E. Reyburn to turn down all suggestions of an amicable settlement when the other members of the board were on the verge of giving way.

The State police having been withdrawn, 2,000 special officers are being sworn in.

No sooner had word of the company's ultimatum in regard to arbitration become known than the union leaders throughout the city began a series of conferences at which plans for the general strike were taken up in detail. The matter, it is expected will be brought before the councilmen at their meeting to-morrow. Organizer Pratt, however, to-day declared that the carmen had taken no initiative in an attempt to bring about arbitration.

To-day found many of the unions included in the call for a general strike—more than 140 in all—demanding an immediate walkout. Pratt has received scores of letters from union leaders urging action at once.

According to the labor chiefs the general strike can be averted, not by the beginning of arbitration proceedings by Saturday, but only by the settlement of the carmen's trouble. The belief is general, however, that any peace plans acceptance would result in delaying the big strike.

PAROLE JUMPER MUST SERVE TIME

Benjamin Torella of East Boston was arrested here to-day for the New Jersey authorities under the very shadow of the walls of Concord Reformatory, where Torella had served a long sentence for horse stealing. Torella, under the alias John Vincent, was painting a house when arrested. He will be taken back to the Rahway Reformatory to finish out a sentence in the New Jersey institution.

Torella proved the psychologists' pet theory that a man will wander all over the country, but that he will return to work or die near the spot where he has the most unpleasant memories.

STOWAWAY GOES BACK TO HOLLAND

Paul German, who arrived on the steamer Zyldyk from Rotterdam, wasn't wanted on board, for he was a stowaway, but when he was driven from his hiding place by hunger, he had it on the officers because they were too far at sea to take him back. He will have to return, being barred from landing by the inhospitable stowaway regulations of Uncle Sam.

BEEF BARONS WILL BE HALED BEFORE COURT

JERSEY CITY, N. J., March 2.—The punishment of the millionaire beef barons themselves, and not the corporations they constitute, is the aim of Prosecutor Garven in Hudson County's war to punish those indicted for conspiracy to increase the price of food. The impersonal status of corporations has stood long enough between the people and the extortionists who have preyed upon them, Mr. Garven declares, and the way to relief is to fight the individuals and not the companies.

"I am after these individuals and I am going to get them," he declared to-day. "The packing companies will come into court to plead to the indictment against them, but I have no intention of prosecuting them as corporations at this time.

"The big fight will be on the point of extradition. I have now practically the proof that these directors under indictment did hold meetings in New Jersey, and that puts the crime of conspiracy within the jurisdiction of the courts of this State. I am going to Chicago myself. I am familiar with the case and feel that I should handle it."

NEW MEDICAL DISCOVERY

For All Skin Troubles

A chemist who was convinced that the old method of taking internal remedies to cure skin diseases was erroneous has discovered that an extract from a particular part of a well-known tree possessed antiseptic and curative properties on the skin tissues. It was, however, found that this valuable vegetable extract was difficult to compound with other ingredients necessary to present it in a form convenient to use. After further investigations and experiments a method of special treatment was devised, resulting in a combination of ingredients possessing to a marked degree valuable therapeutic properties, the like of which has never before been produced. This important product is known as Cadum. Since its introduction Cadum has cured many cases of chronic eczema and other unsightly, irritating and distressing skin diseases, and this after other treatments have failed. Cadum stops the terrible itching of eczema at once, and begins the healing process with the first application. Its action is still more remarkable in less serious skin troubles, such as hives, pimples, blotches, tetter, itch, acne, herpes, scaly skin, psoriasis, ringworm, rash, chafings, eruptions, sores, itching piles, scurvy, blackheads, scabs, etc. Many of the results effected by Cadum may be truly called remarkable. It destroys disease-producing germs, allays inflammation, and is soothing and healing to the skin. Trial box 10c; large box 25c.

O'MEARA AGAIN PROVES HIS SYSTEM POWERLESS TO DEAL WITH CRIME

Dispatches from New York to the various Boston newspapers are to the effect that the New York police authorities are eager to prosecute and punish the gang of bunco men who for years have had their headquarters in Boston, swindling scores upon scores of men. Commissioner O'Meara's attitude, as usual, is to do nothing. He says of the bunco swindlers, "I am not deeply interested." He said the white slave traffic was "casual." He said there was no violation of the law by a score of notorious dives, even after the most overwhelming evidence was presented.

After reading O'Meara's statements in the various Boston morning newspapers of to-day, the question naturally arises, WHAT IS HE INTERESTED IN? Even a second class and very green policeman would at least promise to hunt down the swindlers.

But is O'Meara a POLICEMAN, and if not, why is he at the head of the police department?

Active Prosecution Might Free Boston of Faro Gang BUT—

District Attorney Whitman of New York promises that Boston victims of the faro swindlers will get full justice done them in New York as soon as they make a complaint to his office.

"If any of the Boston victims of the faro swindlers notify this office and make a complaint here, it will be promptly taken up and sifted to the bottom and the swindlers brought to trial."

Commissioner O'Meara refuses to make any definite promise of action against the swindlers. "I continue to see those who have been to me in regard to this matter," said Commissioner O'Meara, "but I AM NOT DEEPLY INTERESTED in it. I have nothing to say as to what I shall do or shall not do in regard to these cases."

"POST" SAYS EFFORT MUST BE MADE TO PUNISH GUILTY

Editorial in To-day's Post.

Now that the town has had its laugh over the gullibility of individuals supposed to be "smart," "men of the world," "up to date" and otherwise able to take care of themselves financially, but who fell victims to a plot within a plot—what next?

It may be futile to discuss the negligence or indifference of the past that has permitted a band of known gamblers to occupy offices in this city for the purpose of luring "suckers" into the game in New York.

IT IS PERHAPS A WASTE OF WORDS TO ASSERT THAT MEMBERS OF THE GANG WERE PERMITTED TO GAMBLE OPENLY IN THE BARROOMS OF HOTELS, OR TO HOLD THAT IF THE OFFICERS OF THE LAW DID NOT KNOW OF THE DOINGS OF THE MALODOROUS CROWD, THEY OUGHT TO HAVE.

If the dead past is determined to bury its dead, there is no way to prevent it. Drive on the hearse.

But how about the future treatment of the swindlers? Can it be possible, as one police official is said to have stated, that there is no way to reach these men criminally? Is there no such crime as obtaining money under false pretences—and here in Boston, where the agreements were usually made—even if the actual trick was performed in New York and was involved in a gambling scheme?

It is a pretty poor condition of law we are living under if a band of financial pirates can range around the town tempting sometimes decent men into their clutches and robbing all, good, bad and indifferent.

The Post has no patience with that theory of offering IMMUNITY TO CRIME. IT BELIEVES THAT THE RASCALS CAN BE REACHED SOMEHOW; THAT THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY'S OFFICE SHOULD INDICT THEM AND HUNT THEM DOWN.

We may jeer at the silly dupes they fleeced, but if we permit the gang to jeer at the laws and the people of this Commonwealth, it will be a sorry exhibition of weakness or worse.

At all events, if we cannot reach this coterie of bunco men, this "swell mob," we can make it unsafe for them to settle in this city again. That would be some gain.

NORDICA WILL DEFEND BALLOT

NEW YORK, March 2.—New York is to be treated to a battle royal between woman suffrage and anti-suffrage. The scene will be the debating platform with Mme. Lillian Nordica defending the interests of the former and Mrs. Gilbert E. Jones upholding the Antis.

Mme. Nordica threw down the gauntlet and her challenge has been accepted by Mrs. Jones, who is president of the National League for the Civic Education of Women, the anti suffrage organization. The challenge was made and accepted during a luncheon given at the home of Mrs. William Salomon, No. 1020 Fifth avenue, to Mrs. Huntington Denton of Paris.

Mme. Nordica had been ardently leading in a discussion of suffrage at her table. Mrs. Jones, who was sitting at another table near enough to overhear the conversation arose before the luncheon was over and announced that she had an important meeting to attend.

WILLS ALMOST ALIKE MADE BY SISTERS

The wills of Antoinette and Margaret Wight, both of Lowell, who died within four days of each other, were found to be almost identical when they were filed for probate in the Middlesex Probate Court at East Cambridge. The only difference between them consisted of a bequest of $500 to the Church of the New Jerusalem at Fall River, made in Antoinette's will.

DOGS CHASE DRAPER TURKEY

Two reckless bird dogs are likely to be charged with lese majeste, if their owners can be located, for assault and battery upon Governor Eben S. Draper's biggest and most blue-blooded turkey. The turkey bird had a narrow escape. A minute more and there would have been forty pounds of dead "turk."

Governor Draper, at his Hopedale farm, has high-priced "turks." The king of the flock is a proud and independent bird, which likes to stalk about by himself. He was spotted by the two bird dogs, which were trespassing on the Draper farm. The dogs gave chase and the turkey ran for his life. Near William Wade's carriage shop the dogs closed in on the turkey. Wade heard the turkey's squawks, came out and beat the dogs off after the turkey had been roughly handled.

1,000 DANCE BIG WELCOME TO ROOSEVELT

MONGALLA, Soudan, March 2.—The Roosevelt party after one of the heartiest receptions given it in Africa set off today for Lake No. The party arrived here last night on the steamer Bal. An elaborate official welcome had been prepared and a prominent part of the festivities were the barbaric dances of 1,000 natives. Greeted by an escort of honor, Colonel Roosevelt was introduced to all the officials and then taken to the governor's residence.

There an elaborate dinner was served at which several dishes which the former President had never before tasted were served.

In the evening the barbaric dances of the natives formed the principal event. By the light of torches the party assembled in the open. The tom-tom echoed over the desert, the dancers entered the lighted circle, singly at first and then in troops. As the dance progressed their fervor increased, ending in a whirling, blaring climax in which the dancers tossed themselves about, brandishing weapons and crying the wierd African calls of battle and jubilation.

Colonel Roosevelt exhibited great interest in the entertainment, declaring it one of the most novel experiences in all his travels.

An interesting feature of the distinguished hunter's stay was the planting by him of a commemorative tree. Yesterday Colonel Roosevelt visited the Belgian post at the Lads enclave and tried out his French on the officers whose guest he was at luncheon.

Lake No, his destination to-day, is a weed-overgrown lake whose area has never been determined.

CAMEL EATS ACTOR'S BEARD

An actor who discovered a camel industriously eating his long and patriarchal white beard would naturally be perturbed, and this is what happened to Walter Sherwin, who plays Balthazer in "Ben-Hur." While Balthazar was standing beside his faithful camel in the Grove of Daphne scene the camel reached over and began to chew on the end of his beard.

For a moment Balthazar was in blissful ignorance, but the laughter of the audience warned him. He glanced down and at once tried to pull his whiskers out of the camel's mouth. The ship of the desert held fast and the whiskers parted, not being intended for ropes or cables. Balthazar fell over backward and the camel continued to chew the part that remained with her.

The audience was hilarious by this time, but in some manner the actors were able to conclude the scene.

BEGIN PROBE OF SOUTHBRIDGE BANK

Senator John E. White of Tisbury, chairman of the legislative committee investigating the looted Southbridge Savings Bank, said to-day:

"It is the present plan of the legislative committee to go to Southbridge Thursday. Some of the members will probably start to-day. We have been awaiting the report of our expert accountants who have been working over the bank's books since last Wednesday, and I understand that it will be ready to-morrow. Independent investigations have been made outside of Southbridge, and the real work of the committee will begin this week, I believe."

ARE YOU "A BUNDLE OF NERVES?"

The danger of kidney sickness is that often it runs you down to the verge of collapse before you know what really is the matter.

If you are always tired, worried, weak, rheumatic, nervous—and suffer at the same time distressing urinary disorders and backache, don't lose sight of the probable cause—sick kidneys.

No other trouble wears more on the nerves than kidney sickness, for the blood may be full of uric acid poison, the effects of which are extremely irritating to the brain and nerves. Many a case of nervous collapse could be traced right back to kidney trouble.

When you seem unable to pin your mind to any task, your back aches and is so lame that you cannot do an ordinary day's work, it is time to give serious thought to this question: "Are my kidneys working right?"

The answer is in your condition.

Sick kidneys, congested by a cold or some other unseen cause, slacken their filtering work. Uric acid circulates freely with the blood, attacking brain, nerves, muscles, joints and vital organs. Headaches, dizzy spells warn you; heart palpitation, poor circulation, bloating, failing eyesight, rheumatism, stomach troubles. It is but a short road to dropsy, diabetes, gravel, stone in the kidney or fatal Bright's disease.

Awaken to the Danger of Collapse and Cure the Weakened Kidneys.

"Every Picture Tells A Story."

Don't wait for the serious troubles. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills when you first feel backache, or first notice urinary disorders. This remedy has given new life and strength to thousands of women and men. It cures sick kidneys and backache.

BOSTON PROOF.

Mrs. S. M. Peppard, 104 Meridian Street, Boston, Mass., says: "In 1905 I gave a public statement recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. At this time I can truthfully verify every word of that indorsement, as the cure then effected has proven a lasting one. Kidney complaint in my case was of long standing and my back ached terribly. It was hard for me to stoop or lift, and sometimes I found difficulty in moving about. I could not lie in one position for any length of time, and often during the night had to get up and sit in a chair. Headaches and dizzy spells were common, and the kidney secretions were a source of annoyance on account of frequency in passage. The medicines I took failed to help me until I had the good fortune to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills. The contents of two boxes of this remedy cured me and improved my condition in every way."

60 ARE DEAD IN TWO TRAINS BY AVALANCHE

SEATTLE, March 2.—Superintendent O'Neill of the Great Northern, in charge of the relief work in the mountains, to-day confirmed by wire the report that sixty lives were lost in yesterday's avalanche that destroyed two trains.

The accident was near the town of Wellington, which is at the western portal of the Great Northern tunnel through the Cascade Mountains.

Twenty-five of the victims are believed to have been passengers who were sleeping in the cars of the Spokane express, which has been stalled at Wellington since last Thursday. The other train, the transcontinental fast mail, carried no passengers. Twenty bodies have been recovered.

The exact number of deaths probably will not be known until the Summer sun melts the great masses of snow and ice.

The private car of Superintendent O'Neill of the Western division was attached to the express and buried with the rest of the train. It is feared A. E. Longgory, private secretary to Superintendent O'Neill, is among the dead. O'Neill, who has been directing the fight against the snow blockade the last ten days, was not in the car at the time and escaped injury.

The Spokane Express lies buried beneath an overwhelming mass of debris, which swept down the mountain side with a tremendous roar and the speed of an express train. Not a single passenger had the slightest chance to escape. All were pinned in their seats, while many were instantly crushed to death by the weight of the avalanche which wrecked the cars as though they were so much paper.

The avalanche swept down the mountain side shortly after 4 o'clock in the morning. Most of the passenegrs on the train were asleep.

OCEAN LINERS AND SCHOONER CRASH IN FOG

NEW YORK, March 2.—Unbroken for three days, a blanket of fog to-day shrouded the Atlantic Coast, crippling all water traffic and bringing danger and accidents with it.

As a direct result of the fog the steamer Tagus of the Royal Mail Line, carrying 150 passengers from Colon, to-day rammed the three-masted schooner Republic of Thomaston, Me., twenty miles southeast of Barnegat, N. J. A small fleet of vessels, including the giant liner Mauretania, rushed to the aid of the sinking ship. The accident, according to wireless reports, did not damage the Tagus, but threw her passengers into panic. The Tagus stood by the schooner, which is a craft of 680 tons, ten years old, and sent out calls for relief.

The wrecking steamer Relief was hurried to the scene. The Republic was bound from San Juan, P. R., with a cargo of sugar.

YIELDED TO GLOVER'S PLEA FOR LE BLANC GIRL, DECLARES HIS WIDOW

whether a larger cartridge would be more effective in killing—I don't know anything at all about it.

"Mr. Glover had cartridges out at our home. I have seen the revolver that Chief McKenna has produced (the revolver with which Glover was killed). I had it in my hands at the station house. Mr. Glover bought that revolver.

"I have seen that revolver before. I don't know when Mr. Glover bought it. I could not say whether or not he had it a year. I was not with him when he bought it. I was never with Mr. Glover when he bought a revolver at Iver Johnson's.

Demanded Truth from Girl.

"I did not have an understanding with Hattie Le Blanc where she was to go that night. (When the girl met Glover at the laundry November 20 and he was shot and killed.) I did not know that she was going to the laundry. I did not ask her if she were going to the laundry.

"On April 13 I brought Mrs. Kate Sampson to my home to hear Hattie Le Blanc's confession. I did not show my hand to Mrs. Sampson and say I hurt it beating Hattie. My hand was all right. Hattie's face was not marked up.

"I told Hattie to tell the truth, that she had told me enough lies already. I did not keep hitting her under the chin with my fist while I kept saying, 'Tell the truth.' Hattie was crying and Mrs. Sampson was crying, too.

"I did not think that Hattie was a fit person to keep in my house. I kept her there from April 7, when she returned from Mrs. Taylor's until her arrest."

Pleaded for Girl.

Mrs. Glover told how her husband had pleaded with her to take Hattie Le Blanc back after the girl had been banished following the discovery of March 29. Hattie had been placed in the home of a Mrs. Taylor of Waltham. Mrs. Taylor is a friend of Mrs. Glover. Mrs. Glover said that she could not turn the girl into the street and that Mrs. Kate Sampson, Mrs. Glover's aunt, had refused to take her in.

"We talked about taking Hattie back several days my husband and I. We talked most every day from the time she went to Mrs. Taylor's. Finally on April 6 it was decided that she should come back.

"My relations with my husband previous to March 29 up to April 6 had been affectionate. They were affectionate from April 6 up to the time of my husband's death.

"My husband and I talked about taking Hattie back at our home. On the day I decided to take her back he talked about it before he went to the office, and he returned and talked about it then. He wanted me to take her back.

"I had to assent. The girl had no home. Mrs. Sampson would not take her in and I could not turn her into the street.

Tells of Tragic Day.

"I did not know that there was a will in existence until a month before Mr. Glover's death. He told me about it then for the first time. I did not ask him the contents of the will and I did not ask him who drafted the will. He told me about it just as we were starting to take an automobile ride. I do not know what day of the week it was."

Mrs. Glover denied that she had ever told Mrs. Sampson that she had or would use a revolver on Hattie Le Blanc to make her confess. Mrs. Glover said that the girl in her story accused Captain Peter King of her home town, West Arichat, N. S., as well as Clarence F. Glover. She said that Hattie had also confessed that she had stolen money from Mr. Glover and from the Glover house.

"On November 20," Mrs. Glover testified—this was the date of her husband's murder—"my husband, Hattie and myself went to the Waltham football game. We came home and had supper there. My husband drank a bottle of beer. Neither I nor Hattie drank any.

"My husband left the house between 6:30 and 6:35 that evening. He said that he was going to get the auto shod. Hattie left between 7:30 and 8 o'clock.

"I went to the telephone at 8:25 to call up Mrs. Freeman but I did not get her just then. I left the house for the hospital between 9:25 and 9:30. I did not receive a message from the hospital."

Mystery in Phone Message.

When Dr. Nicholas W. Cousens was on the witness stand and testified about Glover's dying moments at his hospital he told about calling up the Glover house on the telephone and getting a woman at the other end of the line. The doctor said he told the woman that her husband had been fatally shot and that if she wanted to see him alive she must hurry to the hospital. Dr. Cousens said the woman expressed no emotion or surprise. As Mrs. Glover declares she did not get the message it may be brought out later who the woman was in the house who received it and why this woman answered the telephone.

Up to this time Mrs. Glover was not supposed to know that her husband had been shot.

FINE JOB FOR A SMART GIRL

New Yorkers seem to have a great deal of trouble in obtaining competent maids. A writer in to-day's New York Herald makes the following proposition:

To the Editor New York Herald:

Apropos the servant question, this is what he have to offer one capable general houseworker: A comfortable room looking into a park street, a bath exclusively her own, $30 a month; every Sunday after the dinner, served at 1:30 p. m., is over the rest of the day and evening is hers, also any other time she can find during the week days needed for shopping of any use, also every evening after the 6:30 dinner is over, excepting the rare times we may have a guest of two. Having no social life, we have but little company.

The heavier laundry is sent out. We are two—sometimes three—in family, all adults. Two weeks' vacation, Spring or Fall, as she may choose. One, two or three months each year the entire family are absent and the help has board, keep and wages and the house all to herself during these periods. * * * So why can't we get a girl?

ONE OF THE MANY.

City Hall Notes

Councillor Walter L. Collins is understood to be much disappointed at the few real duties of the office to which he was elected for a three-year term, and is considering seriously the proposition advanced by many of his Dorchester supporters that he become a candidate for Congress in the Tenth District. On the two occasions that he has run for public office he has received more votes in Dorchester than any Democratic candidate has ever received.

The principal assessors have just completed their report to the Mayor on the Finance Commission's report of the department. In it the assessors defend the salaries paid to the clerks in the office and prod the investigating body for some glaring errors in the report. They anticipate showing the commission how little it knows about the department at to-night's meeting of the Committee on Appropriations when a representative of the commission will be present to hear what the department needs for an annual appropriation and to point out where their estimate can be reduced.

Acting Mayor Ballantyne's Scotch friends have presented him with a token of esteem in the shape of a neat ash tray, containing his photograph, surrounded by six of his most prominent fellow-countrymen. The tray was made by Mrs. John Adamson and the portraits appearing upon it are those of Alexander McGregor, Hugh G. Brown, Robert May, Robert Pirie, James L. Williamson and John Adamson.

City Collector Brown expects to remain in his present office indefinitely, according to his friends. Brown was said to be one of the first to be slated for "the hook" by Mayor Fitzgerald, but the collector is of the opinion that his successor will have no easy task in getting by the Civil Service Commission and anticipates hanging on for some time.

One of the members of the City Council who is being mentioned about town as one of the victims of the faro swindlers indignantly denies he was one of those "stung." "I don't know how my name happened to be mentioned," he says, "because I never heard of Big Bill Keliher until the Parker House fight with Curley, and I have no knowledge whatever of any of the others who are supposed to have been in on the scheme."

ABANDONED SHIP IS BROUGHT HOME

The Boston three-masted schooner Sadie C. Skinner—abandoned at sea as a water-logged derelict when skipper and crew were saved from death after days of suffering—is in the lower bay in tow of the tug Chisholm. The Chisholm brought the dismasted schooner from Newport News, to which place she had been towed by the derelict destroyer Seneca. The Government skipper thought she was worth saving though he had been sent out to blow her up.

ACCUSED OF WORKING PASTE DIAMOND GAME

Reuben Ginsberg of Chelsea reached Boston from Chicago to-day in the custody of Inspectors Wolf and Loughlin. The prisoner will face the charge of the larceny of a $600 diamond brooch pin from Morris Lustig, a Washington street jeweler. According to the police, Ginsberg secured the diamond pin under the pretext that he had a customer. Then, the police say, Ginsberg gave a paste pin in substitution.

TAKE A CHANCE TO WIN IN LIFE, SAYS PATTEN

NEW YORK, March 2.—James A. Patten of Chicago, the man who made $25,000,000 by cornering wheat, sailed for Europe to-day on the Cunard liner Mauretania for a vacation, but before the ship left he gave his views on wheat and speculation in general, on life itself, as "a long chance from the cradle to the grave," and wound up with a criticism of J. Pierpont Morgan and other millionaires who have been large purchasers of paintings and other objects of art.

"Some people," said Mr. Patten, "as soon as they get some money discover that they know a lot about art. That has never happened to me. I don't know a masterpiece from a chromo. A friend of mine recently was talking to me about paintings. He was going to buy some and I told him to go slow. Then I pointed out to him that the list of paintings imported into the United States showed that the artists could not have turned out as many as that if they worked all their lives, day and night.

"No, I don't know much about art. My life has been devoted to speculation and it will be until I die. I shall go on buying and selling wheat until the end. This thing is a hard one to get away from and I am not going to try. I believe old John D. goes right on buying and selling stocks. I don't believe he has stopped or has been able to stop. Speculation is the spice of life. No man ever yet got anywhere unless he took a chance. Life itself is a long chance from the cradle to the grave. A man must take a chance to get ahead.

"The outlook for wheat is bad. Great damage has been done in the West, but the value of wheat at the present time is an unknown quantity. The future will have to determine things in the wheat market."

It is generally understood that when Mr. Patten returns from Europe he is planning to take a whirl at the cotton market.

POPE LEO DAY IS CELEBRATED BY CATHOLICS

This is the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Pope Leo XIII., who ruled the Catholic world from 1878 to 1903.

Leo's predecessor in the chair of Peter was Pope Pius IX., the later years of whose pontificate were filled with sorrow because of the conflict between Victor Emanuel and his ally, Garibaldi. This conflict led to an estrangement between the Vatican and the government of Italy which has continued down to the present. As its chief result, the Pope remains a prisoner within the Vatican grounds, never venturing outside from the time of his coronation till his death.

The Pope Leo centennial is being celebrated to-day in Rome with special religious ceremonials. The European press, commenting on the centennial, recalls the scholarly character of the late pontiff and his great skill in dealing with men and affairs. He was highly venerated in all the courts of Europe and shortly before his death received special visits from Emperor William and King Edward.

SEEKS ESTATE OF MAN LOST 14 YEARS

WORCESTER, March 2.—John Lincoln Bates, a Fitchburg pedler, disappeared nearly fourteen years ago and has never been heard of since, and in the Probate Court his brother, Edwin A. Bates of Upton, has petitioned for the appointment of a receiver for his brother's property, which consists of $1,600 in cash. Bates was insane some time before he was last seen.

TAUGHT 38 YEARS, BECOMES A BRIDE

ARLINGTON, March 2.—Miss Louisa Warren, aged fifty-seven, will be married to Archibald Sears, sixty-one years old, at the Congregational Church of Arlington Centre this evening. Miss Warren has been a school teacher at the Russell Grammar School for the last thirty-eight years.

After their marriage the couple will reside at 31 Swan place, where Mr. Sears now lives.

MANY WOMEN CAST BALLOTS IN BROOKLINE

Brookline millionaires and their wives hustled to vote to-day in such numbers, and the "Village" vote came out so strong too, that it is expected all records for annual town election will be broken. Up to this noon two-thirds of the total town vote had been cast. Last year's balloting was 3,000 in round numbers.

Contests for selectmen and school board caused the rush. Horace James, John A. Curtin and Philip S. Parker of the present board were candidates for re-election. Mr. James, generally known as "Uncle Horace," is the Nestor of the board. George S. Baldwin of Chestnut Hill and Dr. Everett M. Bokwer of Coolidge Corner ran on caucus nominations. James F. Quinn, Albion F. Bemis and Lyman J. Clark ran on nomination papers. That made eight candidates for only three vacancies on the board.

There were two candidates to succeed School Committeeman Bowker. The candidates were Fred H. Robinson and Dr. Carlton S. Francis.

Many women came out to vote for school board candidates. Mrs. Robert Treat Paine, 2d, is again candidate for the school board.

The polls were opened at 6:15 a. m. to close at 5:15 p. m. The annual town meeting, with consideration of the town warrant, which was scheduled for to-night, was postponed for two weeks.

BILL WOULD ADMIT GRANT TO G. A. R.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Major General Frederick Dent Grant, U. S. A., son of the late General Ulysses S. Grant, will be eligible to membership in the Grand Army of the Republic if a bill, upon which a favorable report was ordered by the House Military Committee, passes the House and the Senate. It is generally believed that it will be passed.

BUNCO SYNDICATE WORKED SWINDLES IN BOSTON OPENLY FOR FIVE YEARS

Martin Walsh Considered Head of Outfit; Keliher Looked Upon as Chief "Steerer."

into the scandal of the gang's operations in Boston. He was assured informally of the co-operation of District Attorney Whitman of New York, who said that any complaints of the clique's operations in New York would be sifted to the bottom, and the accused men brought to trial.

Mr. Pelletier asked the police to help him, and Chief Dugan immediately detailed McGarr and Armstrong, who are skilled in trailing financial swindlers. Then the District Attorney communicated with Captain Hurley in Cambridge, and Hurley said that he would co-operate at once.

Victims Must Testify.

As a result subpoenas were issued for the men whose names have already appeared in the newspapers as victims or intended victims of the gang. They were ordered to appear at the District Attorney's office this afternoon. Mr. Pelletier would not make a statement of his intentions, but he did ask the newspaper reporters to request all persons having knowledge of the operations of the gang to appear at his office this afternoon.

After questioning the witnesses, Pelletier will prepare their stories for the grand jury. It was said unofficially at his office that this investigation would "go the limit" and that nobody would be spared.

The Boston men involved in the swindles have all fled from the city, but neither the District Attorney nor the police are much worried about that. It was said at the District Attorney's office that if indictments were found, the finding of the men would be a secondary matter. It was reported to-day, however, that at least two of the men in the "bunco syndicate" have gone to Europe.

One Official Accused.

The sudden display of activity in Pemberton square to-day followed a week of newspaper publications telling the story of the amazing campaign of swindling that has been carried on in Boston for the past five years. These stories were gradually leading a trail "up the hill" to police headquarters itself.

One official was accused of having the facts of one of the attempts to swindle, but declared that he "could do nothing," and a member of the swindling gang was quoted as saying that he has to send $1,000 "up the hill" in this particular operation.

There was general indignation about the city because the police not only did nothing, but made no real denial of the stories reflecting upon their attitude toward the swindlers.

In one case where an intended victim of the gang laid a trap and instead of being fleeced got $2,500 of the gang's money, both the man who was to be swindled and the agent of the gang whom he had trapped appeared before a high police official. This official not only dissuaded the man from going further with the case, but actually persuaded him to return the $2,500 to the steerer. This is particularly amazing, because, although the police know who this gang consists of, there is no record that they ever compelled one of the syndicate to give back any of the money stolen from victims.

Conspiracy Is Punishable.

It has been maintained at Police Headquarters that there is no law that can be invoked to punish the swindlers, but that is an error. Conspiracy to defraud is punishable and the operations of this gang are clearly conspiracies to defraud.

Moreover, two of the old "blue laws" apply. One is section 50 of Chapter 212, the applicable part of which reads:

> Idle persons who, not having visible means of support, live without lawful employment * * * shall be deemed vagrants, and may be sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory, State farm or shall be punished by imprisonment of not more than six months in the house of correction or workhouse.

Part of section 46 of the same chapter is also applicable, as follows:

> Rogues and vagabonds, persons who use any unlawful games or plays * * * and all other idle and disorderly persons who neglect all lawful business * * * may be punished by imprisonment in the Massachusetts reformatory or at the State Farm or for not more than six months in the House of Correction or workhouse.

But in each case where the swindle has been successfully worked, it is grand larceny pure and simple, and where the plot has failed, it is attempted grand larceny—both serious crimes, with heavy penalties—police officials to the contrary notwithstanding.

Leaders of the Gang.

MARTIN WALSH—Believed to be the "brains" of the gang. Walsh lives in Huntington avenue. He has been known as a gambler and "sure-thing" man for years. He was barred by a transatlantic steamship company after Dr. Muir was fleeced of thousands on an ocean trip.

"BIG BILL" KELIHER—Political hanger-on. All-round sport. Induced Coleman to bet $10,000 on Storrow, and is accused of "steering" some of the intended victims. Close friend of high police officials. Well known about down-town hotels.

ED McAVOY—Used to run Miller House in Boston and was known as all-round gambler here. Left Boston twelve years ago, and handles the New York end of the syndicate. Well dressed and "smooth."

TIMMY KENNEY—Sold papers in the Old Archway book store, but graduated into a clever, brainy and active sport. Runs the New York end of the game with McAvoy.

E. S. McPHERSON—Used to "work" the transatlantic liners with Martin Walsh, and has been credited with being a "steerer" in towns near Boston.

FRANK DRAPER—Known about the downtown hotels and sporting resorts as one of the "outside men," close to Keliher and Walsh.

DARBY MOULTON—The least known of the seven. Is supposed to have helped Walsh "work" the steamships, and has been credited since as one of the quiet manipulators behind the syndicate.

The names of a score of gamblers have been mentioned in connection with the swindlers, but most of them were brought in only as voluntary "steerers," who produced victims for the main gang and expected to get a "rake-off." In some cases the steerers themselves were "trimmed," and in other instances did not get their share of the proceeds. This resulted in quarrels, through which many secrets of the gang became known.

Seven Men in Syndicate.

As a matter of fact, the evidence seems to show that but seven men were connected with the principal operations. With the discovery of this fact came the further information to-day that the gang had been working for at least five years and must have "cleaned up" several hundred thousand dollars.

Martin Walsh, the well known Back Bay gambler, is credited with being the "brains" of the so-called Bunco Syndicate. He used to "work" the trans-Atlantic liners with "Doc" Owens, the notorious short card man, whose particular calling was to fleece steamship passengers of thousands of dollars in crooked poker games.

Walsh's picture is on every Atlantic liner and passengers are warned to steer clear of him. He has made thousands by playing cards with passengers in the smoke rooms of the steamships. In this game victims with plenty of money were "discovered" by steerers and Walsh and Owen did the rest.

Martin Walsh was once a barber in Danvers, but he was always a clever card "shark" and finally made a business of gambling. He went to Worcester, where he backed a combination, but was driven from the city by the police after a prominent business man was found to be a heavy loser. Then he came to Boston, which he still calls his home.

One of the Best Bunco Men.

He is one of the cleverest gamblers in the East. Until within a year or so he has occupied himself with from eight to ten trips a year across the Atlantic, each time making large hauls. He is believed to be a rich man now, although he does not appear to own any real estate. It is likely that he furnished the $1,000 bills which were used as a lure to the "comeons."

The steerers used to "flash" these bills in the eyes of the victims, and that naturally made them covetous. It was a package of twenty-seven of these bills that caught a police judge in Boston and led him to part with $4,000. It is said that a larger package of $1,000 bills was used to impress the State street banker who finally lost $60,000 to the swindling gang.

Martin Walsh is not the typical sport that some of his associates are. He is quiet and unostentatious. He likes a good dinner and a good cigar. But he prefers beer to wine and rarely buys a cold bottle, although his abstinence is not due to meanness. On the contrary, he is very liberal with his money. He simply prefers beer to champagne and is not ashamed to say so.

"Big Bill" Keliher comes next in importance among the seven men in the syndicate. Keliher is a political hanger-on in Ward 17. He is an old-time foe of "Jim" Curley, and the recent scrap in the Parker House bar, when the Councilman knocked "Big Bill" down is well remembered.

"Big Bill" Is Valuable.

Keliher is considered very valuable to the gang because of his wide acquaintance and particularly because of his confidential relations with a high police official. He is the principal steerer of the gang. His greatest triumph was the "discovery" of young Coleman and the thousands of dollars of Cambridge bank money. Keliher has been mentioned by several of the victims or intended victims.

Ned McAvoy is third in importance. He handles the New York end of the syndicate. McAvoy was very well known in this city until about ten years ago. Then he went to New York, where he has since cut quite a figure in the Tenderloin.

When in Boston McAvoy was known in all the houses where faro and roulette were played, and about twenty years ago there were many gambling places here where a man could play a "piker" bet to a thousand dollars. McAvoy ran the Miller House in Court street, now a low-priced lodging house. The Miller House was the centre of gay life in Boston at that time. All the crooks and confidence men "hung out" there, and when the police wanted a man they went to the Miller House to get him.

Gambling Den in the Rear.

In the rear of the Miller House was one of the biggest gambling establishments in New England, if not in the entire East. The man who ran it is now dead, but he made thousands out of the place. His name was well known from the Atlantic to the Pacific, but not as a gambler. This man also maintained a gambling establishment in what is now known as the cafe district.

Ned McAvoy is a very swell dresser and is considered one of the smoothest of propositions. He is also highly esteemed by those who admire the rough and tumble game. In fact, it was said at one time that Ned was the best rough and tumble man in Boston, which was going some in those times. He is, however, very gentlemanly appearing and talks smoothly, wears no flashy clothes or diamonds and would be taken for a well-to-do merchant or a man of importance in some legitimate line.

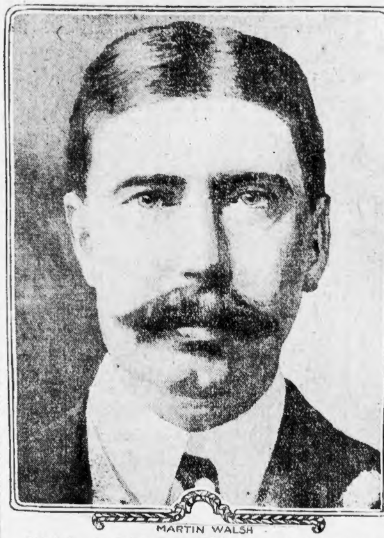
Kenney a Shrewd Member.

"Timmy" Kenney is associated with McAvoy in New York. Kenney began life selling newspapers in the old Archway bookstore, and became so well known for his shrewdness that when he grew up he was readily admitted to the craftiest sporting sets. He knew the game from A to Z before he started. Kenney turned out to be a successful gambler just as he was a successful newsboy.

He used to sell "mutuals" at the race tracks of this section, but when race track betting was stopped in Massachusetts, he went to New York, joined McAvoy and made a hit in the Tenderloin.

E. S. McPherson has been mentioned by some of the victims or intended victims from nearby cities and towns. At the downtown hotels he is credited with being an outside "steerer." McPherson used to "work" the liners with Walsh. So did Darby Moulton, who is believed to be connected with the syndicate.

Frank Draper, an all-round sport, known throughout the hotels and sporting club sections, is believed to be the seventh man. Draper has been mentioned by some of the men who were picked out as victims.



MARTIN WALSH

This is the only photograph yet published of the man who furnished the brains for the Boston gang of faro bank swindlers. It is a good likeness of Walsh as he appears now. He was originally a barber at Danvers, but forsook his trade for easier but more perilous ways of getting the coin.

This Column Will Interest THE COOK And Perhaps You, Too.

Gold and Reception For the Family Cook.

NEW YORK, March 2.—In Brooklyn there is a man who knows the secret of how to keep a cook. He is George F. Elliott, lawyer, of No. 299 Clermont avenue. Here is what he says:

"Get a cook whose only literature is the cook book, and then treat her kindly."

Yesterday was the twenty-first anniversary of the advent of Miss Emma Scarborough Jerrybank Du Pulse in the kitchen of the Elliott household. In the morning she received a purse of gold as a gift. All day her friends and friends of her employer trooped to the house to partake of the dainties that she had prepared for the occasion. Mr. Elliott was at home part of the day to assist the cook in receiving.

Woman Wills Her Baby to Wife Number Two.

KANSAS CITY, March 2.—Believing that eventually she would be murdered by Lewis Hilton, a man who was infatuated with her, Mrs. Grace Guion willed her three-year-old baby to the new wife of her divorced husband.

"When I am dead you take my baby and care for it, will you?" she asked of the woman who had taken her place in the Guion home. The second Mrs. Guion promised that she would.

Mrs. Guion was murdered as she predicted and the second Mrs. Guion took the motherless little Evelyn into her home. After killing Mrs. Guion, Hilton ended his own life.

This Woman Is Limited to One-Minute Birthdays.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 2.—Because she was born on February 29 Mrs. A. B. Endicott, wife of Circuit Court Judge Endicott, has been forced to have one-minute birthdays on three years in four. Mrs. Endicott celebrated her birthday this year only during the time that the clock was striking midnight, between February 28 and March 1. She claims this neutral time legally represents her proper birthday and that she has a decision from her husband to support her claim.

Women Rush to Secure Jobs as Policemen.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 2.—An unauthorized announcement that Mayor Shank is contemplating the addition of women to the police force caused him to be overrun with applicants for places, two women calling before office hours. When the Mayor reached his office he was kept busy at the telephone by female applicants, and four applications reached him by special messengers. Speaking of the report, he said that he had not contemplated such a thing.

Blindness Is Cured by Colored Window Glass.

PHILADELPHIA, March 2.—A discovery of great value to those whose sight has been impaired by working under artificial light has recently been made in this city. Amethyst tinted lenses made from window glass taken from houses in Walnut street are curing many cases of partial blindness. The lenses are made of ordinary window panes that have been in use for more than seventy-five years, and have been turned an amethyst tint by the direct rays of the sun.

$11,000 PROFIT TO CONNOR MEN

The 275 employes in the ninety-three stores of the John T. Connor Company are as pleased as can be to-day over the $11,000 which they have received under the profit sharing plan adopted by the company eleven months ago. The distribution of this money took place at a meeting of the officers and employes of the company in Knights of Honor Hall last night. Every employe of the grocery company received a check. The largest check, $300, went to John Robson, superintendent of the Dorchester and South Boston stores. The smallest checks were not less than $10. Even the girl cashier who became an employe only six months ago received her share.

John T. Connor was present and addressed the meeting. He received a royal greeting from the gathering of 400 employes and their friends. Sharing the honors with Mr. Connor as guest of the evening was W. E. Butler, head of the W. E. Butler establishment on Tremont street. Mr. Butler was deeply interested in the meeting, as the employes of his store are to form to-night a profit-sharing organization similar to that of the John T. Connor Company.

The terms of the profit-sharing plan are that the company distribute one-half of the net profits of the year among its employes. The organization was started a year ago. The even $11,000 distributed now represents one-half the net profits for eleven months, after deducting expenses and the interest on the money invested by the company.

SOUTH QUINCY COPPER DEAL

B. H. Scheftels & Co. announce the organization of the South Quincy Copper Company, which will take title to three important copper mining properties in adjoining sections of land, known as Montezuma, Dacotah and South Side, aggregating 759 acres and including the most promising compact ground in the entire Lake country.

The property lies largely within the limits of the town of Houghton, Mich., and is almost surrounded by some of the greatest mines in the Lake copper country, the Quincy, Isle Royale and Hancock. It is three miles from the Copper Range. An extension of the main lode of the Quincy, known as the Pewabic lode, runs through the northwest quarter to the Dacotah property. The properties also carry the Kearsarge and Osceola lodes, Isle Royale, Amygdaloid and several unidentified lodes.

The company will be incorporated under the laws of Michigan with 200,000 shares, par $25, on which $10 will be paid in. The property costs $600,000 and has 40,000 shares of stock, $10 paid. The present offering of 20,000 shares at $10 will be all net to the treasury. This will provide $200,000 working capital and 80,000 shares of treasury. The president will be Charles S. Herzig, E. M.; treasurer, B. H. Scheftels; secretary, Captain W. Murdock Wiley. These, with Oscar A. Turner and a prominent Michigan banker, will be the directors. Formal announcement of the stock offering will be made shortly. The books open one business day only during the present month.

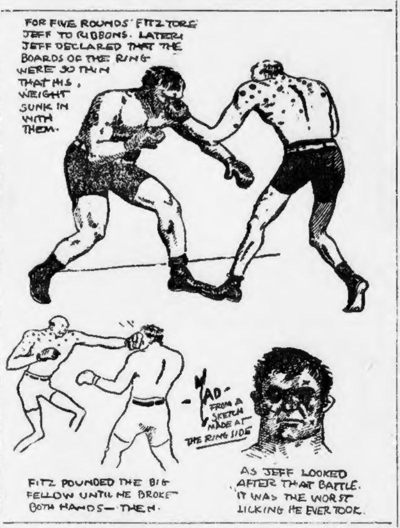
BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

JEFF'S WONDERFUL STAMINA WON SECOND BOUT

YOUTH AND COURAGE BEAT FITZ



FOR FIVE ROUNDS 'FITZ TORE JEFF TO RIBBONS. LATER JEFF DECLARED THAT THE BOARDS OF THE RING WERE SO THIN THAT HIS WEIGHT SUNK IN WITH THEM.
"AD" FROM A SKETCH MADE AT THE RING SIDE
FITZ POUNDED THE BIG FELLOW UNTIL HE BROKE BOTH HANDS—THEN.
AS JEFF LOOKED AFTER THAT BATTLE. IT WAS THE WORST LICKING HE EVER TOOK.

When the big California youth knocked the champion of the world dead at Coney Island, in which the veteran fought one of the weakest battles of his career, his fight was weak because he was rattled by a new attack and overwhelmed by the youth and strength of his foe, but he knew too much to make those remarks for publication.

Fitz announced that he had been "doped" by some one interested in having Jeffries win. But he would retire, prouder in defeat than Jeff would be in the glory of a victory won by these means. He would let the world judge his long record, he said.

Now Fitz had no more idea of retiring than he had that he was doped. Human beings are not so constituted that they retire from anything as long as there is anything to be made out of it until some one or some thing gets them hard between the shoulder blade and the cerebellum.

So it was that after Jeff had dropped Jim Corbett and beaten Ruhlin to the ground Fitzsimmons came out of his "retirement" about every twenty minutes by standard time to tell the sport world what a horrible example he would have made of Jeffries if he hadn't been doped.

The fight was held on the evening of July 25, 1902, and all of that day San Francisco swarmed with fight fans and gamblers, local and foreign talent. The betting in Frisco was enormous.

Fight Begins.

All trifles, such as bandages, had been arranged for in the articles of agreement, and there was little delay after Referee Graney called the men to the centre. No official weights were taken, but the champion's bulk was said to push up the beam to the 215-pound notch. Fitz said that he weighed 160 pounds. Many of the hardened callously declared that this was a play for sympathy in case of eventualities.

The gong was the signal for a roar of excitement as the gladiators moved slowly out of their corners and faced each other. Again Fitz met the unexpected, for Jeff had elected to drop his crouch and make a stand-up fight of it. But Fitz hailed the new style with a joy that was but little short of the crowd's. He feinted cautiously for a few seconds as he wheeled slowly around the swarthy statue in the middle of the ring, and then his long, powerful left arm licked out, and the fist landed with a thud on Jeff's cheek. Another fierce yell as Jeff drove his left to the body for a counter and a crescendo when Fitz doubled up his left and hammered it against the champion's nose. From that moment on until the knockout in the eighth the great pavilion was a bedlam. The champion's great body slid forward like an avalanche and bore Fitz to the ropes, his left hand finding the body again. The veteran wriggled out of the clinch and again he jammed his left fist against Jeff's nose.

The big man hurried out of his corner like a man who has something that must be attended to at once, but Fitz stepped into the hail of deadly fists and clinched without taking a damaging blow. Jeff's anxiety was making him wild and he charged up and down the ring so energetically that Fitz had few opportunities to land forcibly. But he kept the nose bleeding.

Fitz smiled as he evaded a few of the champion's frantic lunges at the opening of the third. But Jeff got in one of his lefts to the mouth and another to the ear. But he paid a bloody price. As the left landed on the veteran's ear his great shoulders swayed forward and his own left crashed against the bridge of Jeff's battered nose. Two more lefts to the face followed like the blows of a hammer. Then Jeff swung his great right, but the blow was cleanly blocked and Fitz's left darted out to the face again. It was another flat-footed punch and it opened a chasm an inch and a half long under the champion's eye.

Then Came the Deluge.

Jeff stood still for a second and then pawed for his foe. Two more lefts ripped his battered face before the bell came.

And then came the deluge. For four rounds the bold and war-worn warrior hammered the face of the champion of the world until it was a shapeless pulp. Never did a man get such a beating in so short a time. Occasionally he managed to reach the midriff of the veteran with one of his deadly lefts, but it was the old champion that was doing the spectacular work, and it was for him that cheer after cheer went up to shake the sandhills of San Francisco.

It did not seem possible that any human being could stand up so long under the merciless pounding of those terrible arms.

There was scarcely a mark on the veteran, but he was so much the weaker of the two at the end of the sixth round that every expert saw the inevitable end.

Jeff forced him across the ring at the opening of the eight, landing twice with both hands to the body. He crowded the Old Man until his shoulders touched the ropes, and then came the dying flicker. Fitz gathered himself together and drove both hands to the face, and as Jeff dropped back half a pace he got the same dose again. Then, while the great throng bayed and shrieked for a knockout, he drove the champion clear across the ring. It was the last flash. Again Jeff came on to the attack, and it was not met. Fitz retreated and his back touched a post. He dropped his hands as if to clinch, and at that moment he got a left into the stomach that lifted him clear off his feet.

As he came down the right went into the same place, and with a groan he dropped on his hands and knees. Twice he tried to raise as the count was ticked off and twice he dropped back with a shake of his head. He was not senseless, but helpless. At the third try he straightened up on his knees as the final word was called in his ear.

Then he did a dramatic thing. Before his handlers could reach him he stripped the gloves off his broken hands and threw them—right and left—into the crowd. In a voice hoarse with pain and scanty breath he roared:

"I have fought my last fight!"

DELMONT EASY MARK FOR FAST PAL MOORE

By I. S. CLARK.

Pal Moore, the much touted Quaker bantam, who is heralded as the future champion of his class, toyed with Albert Delmont, the little Italian from the precincts of the North End, at the Armory A. A. last night and won the decision by a big margin at the end of the ten rounds of ring exercise.

That's about what it was, simply a romp. It was the tamest bout ever seen in this city betwen two boys who had class back of them and in the minds of many looked queer, the tapping was so light.

That Moore could have made it still more distressing for Delmont was the general impression of all the witnesses at the ringside, but he seemd to be fighting under wraps for the whole distance, barring some lively action in the closing rounds.

Moore won the bout with one hand to score with, his left. He might have had a right hand, but he used it to block, not not to hit with, and his cautious tactics were not received with much enthusiasm.

Too Much Sparring.

As a sparring exhibition it glittered all over, for that is where Moore shines to perfection, and he was perfectly contented to go along easily and score by smashing his port in all over Delmont's countenance with just force enough to make the Italian blink and blind him for a chance to make a return.

It got so bad at several stages that the packed house got a bit weary and yelled for the ring performers to hit up the pace.

Delmont was in poor shape for a hard bout. A boil stood out on the back of his neck as big as his fist, which gave evidence of condition and he was not right to travel even ten rounds at any hot pace, especially with a boy who was so hard to reach as the Quaker, who was like a firefly, never in the spot a fraction of a second.

All seriousness to the bout was lost by the easy way Moore played with his left hand on Delmont's face. He was obliged almost to eat Moore's glove, it was so oten glued to his features and roars of laughter greeted the sorry plight Delmont was in, as the stuffed chamois smothered his vision and he vainly tried to locate the fleeting object that was hurling the live javelin into his eyesight.

It fairly rained lefts on Delmont in every round and drove him to wild attempts to rush madly in where Moore should have been, but on those occasions he was backstepping all the while pushing a few more lefts into his oncoming victim, till Al began to wonder whether he was afoot or horseback and his puzzled condition was only too painful by the vacant expression he wore.

For a couple of rounds the two boys went along at an even clip, feeling each other out, not making any advances to land a hard punch, Moore giving Delmont a lot of respect and there was little choice between them in their light scoring.

When the third round was on tap Moore began to ginger up some by making his left work faster and keeping Delmont backing to the ropes before the deadly obstacle.

It was slow going in the middle of the bout with Moore satisfied to hold the lead he had to his credit, but he got the signal to open up a bit in the seventh round and his jumping in and out tactics, blinding Delmont with showers of lefts made the local lad look worse than ever and there was some doubt that he would last if Moore had the inclination to force matters to the limit.

Delmont Was Willing.

When the Italian got his blood stirred up by the tantalizing lefts Moore was covering him with, he shut his teeth and rushed in, occasionally landing a hard punch on the body, but the ease with which Moore evaded his wild plunges made him look ludicrous, as every false step meant more disaster to his face from Moore's dabber.

The victory Moore obtained recently over Delmont in New York was sustained by the result of the second encounter as the Quaker left no doubt who was master in comparing their standing in the ring.

That Moore sizes up as the biggest bantam in the game was emphasized on the fans, who immediately classified him as belonging among the featherweights because of his heavy outline, but for a seventeen-year-old boy he is a star of the first magnitude, no matter what division he is assigned.

It was decidedly a Quaker meeting, as Tommy O'Keefe won the second bout of the three ten-round setpieces on the bill, making Harry Scroggs of Baltimore, who substituted for Eddie Murphy, quit at the end of the eighth round.

It was just as well Murphy did not appear as he was saved the despair of getting a licking, for O'Keefe simply cut Scroggs to pieces and the veteran stayed the eight sessions on his gameness, taking a fearful lacing and escaping a knockout by good fortune.

The farther the bout went the more like chain lightning O'Keefe became. While Scroggs was trying to find him O'Keefe was sending over bunches of rights and lefts from every direction and they were aimed especially at Scroggs' bellows. The pounding told, for Scroggs gradually wilted and in the eighth period he went down before a volley of O'Keefe's pellets and the bell came in time to pull him through. He wanted to continue but his seconds refused to see him battered to pieces.

Shevlin to the Rescue.

It was Eddie Shevlin, the Roxbury king mitt slammer, who saved the night from being a whitewash for the home material as he secured the verdict over Willie Moody, the sturdy Quaker, at the end of ten sizzling rounds.

For five rounds it was anybody's fight, the visitor giving Eddie all he could handle with a fine uppercut and a steamy left hook to the head, Shevlin taking a lot of bumps, due to his carelessness.

The State street gathering began to root hard when Shevlin got moving in earnest in the sixth round, and Shevlin tore in savagely, welting Moody on the body, and kept it up to the final bell, Moody slowing down from the body pounding he received.

$150,000 OFFER FOR JOHNSON JEFFRIES BOUT

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 2.—A legitimate effort to have Promoters Gleason and Rickard bring the Jim Jeffries-Jack Johnson heavyweight battle to Los Angeles was made, when Dick Ferris, the well-known promoter, telegraphed as follows:

"To Tex Rickard and Jack Gleason,
San Francisco:

"Will you consider legitimate proposition to bring the Jeffries-Johnson fight to this city if guaranteed $150,000. Answer.
(Signed) "DICK FERRIS."

That promoters Jack Gleason and Texas Rickard are interested in Dick Ferris's offer of $150,000 to transfer the Jeffries-Johnson battle to Los Angeles is indicated by the following reply to the message which they put on the wire:

"Your message indefinite; would suggest that you write us immediately giving all details of your proposition."

Ferris was busy until a late hour dictating a letter to the joint promoters. "I have the money behind me to swing the deal," announced Ferris. "Should Messrs. Gleason and Rickard accept $150,000 to be relieved of the big fight we would expect them to step aside and turn the whole matter over to us so that we could realize a profit on our investment.

"As the case stands now, Gleason and Rickard are giving the boxers a purse of $101,000, together with two-thirds interest in the moving pictures. Should they accept our offer they would be getting a bonus of $49,000, which should certainly satisfy them.

"My letter, which is now in the mail, will make our position plain on a cold-blooded business basis. What we want to do is to pay Gleason and Rickard $150,000 for their show, after which we will go ahead and stage it independently of Jack and Tex."

PROMOTERS DELAY GIVING ANSWER TO SALT LAKE MEN

SAN FRANCISCO, March 2.—Joseph Nelson, banker, of Salt Lake, who represents the business men of that city who are anxious to have the Johnson-Jeffries fight for their own, may return to his home before getting a definite answer from the Gleason-Rickard promoting combine.

The promoters and the Salt Lake delegate held another conference last night at which again he put forward his propositions of the day before, one to give the promoters a $25,000 bond to stage the battle in Utah and the other to buy their interests outright for $30,000 or $15,000 to each of them.

Gleason said that in view of the $15,000 offered, and the Los Angeles and other propositions which he did not care to detail at present, he would like to postpone consideration of the Salt Lake proposition for a week.

Rickard thought that Nelson was entitled to an answer sooner, and, after some discussion, it was agreed that the Salt Lake people would be given a definite reply to their offers on Monday next.

CRACK BOWLERS HIT BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, Md., March 2.—Interest in the fourth annual tournament of the National Bowling Association to be held in Baltimore April 7 to 30, inclusive, grows apace as the time for the start of the national affair draws near.

Every big city in the country will be represented by fully a score of its best individual bowlers. A great deal of enthusiasm, however, centres in the team matches. New York will send at least seventy-five teams to match their skill against the best teams that can be gathered in Baltimore. Philadelphia, Washington, Boston, Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Indianapolis and numerous other cities. New Jersey expects to have a larger representation in the Baltimore tournament than ever before.

Elimination contests are now being conducted in some cities to choose teams to represent them in the Baltimore event.

CHICAGO, March 2.—At a meeting of the billiard committee of the Chicago A. C. it was decided to send C. Conklin is considered as having a fine chance to win the title this year.

Manager McGard Disciplines Pitcher "Phenom" Jones

DRAWBRIDGE, KY., Mar. 2.—Relations between Manager McGard, of the Purple Sox, and Pitcher "Phenom" Jones, who after making a good showing in minor-league work last season was selected to help support "Three-finger" Mannie, became very much strained to-day, when the big boss had things to say about the way the youngster was showing up in the workouts.

The affair is shrouded in mystery; for after the practice McGard and young Jones lagged behind on the field, and later appeared at the hotel with their faces decidedly bruised, but both looking happy.

"It isn't anybody's business, that I can see," remarked Manager McGard, in explanation. "'Phenom' and I merely strolled up from the grounds together. As for the cuts on my face, I fell against a threshing machine. I don't know how he got his."

Later he added: "You might give him a little boost in your paper. He's working well, and he's got the fighting spirit that wins games."

The whole truth of the matter is set forth in "His Big-League Debut"—a corking story of baseball in the making, complete in the April issue of People's Ideal Fiction Magazine, on sale NOW, fifteen cents a copy. This is only the first story of a series dealing with "Phenom" Jones. One of the stories will appear complete in every number, throughout the season. Don't miss them.

SO-CALLED "FINE TRADE" ATTACKS
MITCHELL, The Tailor
My Answer--$10,000 to Charity

To the "Fine Trade"—

For seven years I have done business at 305 Washington street, Boston, and buy direct from the mills at prices as low if not lower than those paid by commission houses that sell to you. (I will pay $10,000 to any charity you may name if this is not true). I use as fine all-linen canvas as you use in your best work and will pay for your cost to examine and leave this to any trimming house in the country. The haircloth I use is real French haircloth, not buckram (this $10,000 in real money goes if such is not the case, and every one of you know I have the money). Furthermore, the customers of Mitchell, the Tailor, for the past seven years were your customers and you make a mistake if you think them fools. And if the man who was behind that story in a Boston paper Saturday will meet me I will correct his error and prove to him that my coats are made by HIS OWN COAT MAKERS. I have the names of his customers, whose coats were resting side by side with my work in the same shop (his $60.00, mine $15.00), and I took a picture this afternoon that I will place in my window with a sworn statement to that effect. Cumner, Jones & Co. sell me my canvas by the bale. John Manson Haircloth Co. sell me my haircloth by the bale. As to my woolens, when I am not taking over a whole stock of some $60.00 tailor (not $50.00 worth, as stated), I buy direct from the mills. I will print a full story on this later in the week.

Gentlemen, I thank you,
MITCHELL, THE TAILOR.

BOSTON AUTO SHOW IS LEADER OVER ALL

By J. C. KERRISON.

Complete in every essential; absolutely and comprehensively representative of the motor and kindred industries, the annual motor show of the Boston Automobile Dealers' Association will throw wide open its doors in Mechanics Building next Saturday evening.

This exhibit will unquestionably prove the most complete yet held in this country, for it comes at such a time that every manufacturer is able to place on exhibition the product that will remain standard with him throughout the year, and after all the little refinements of detail and finish have been made over the first product of the season.

Furthermore, it brings together all classes of manufacturers, whereas, in the big New York shows in the past, has been two distinct and separate parties of makers, the licensed and the independent maker.

This, however, holds not good in Boston, the result being that the number of individual exhibits is much greater than those at any of the New York exhibits, and, in fact, in excess of the great Chicago exhibit.

One Roof Covers All.

The main trouble with the Chicago show is that it was held in three different buildings, and the interest of the visitor was materially decreased thereby. But here in Boston one does not have to travel through "pneumonia alley" in order to pass from one to the other, as one roof covers all.

The number of exhibits in pleasure and commercial vehicles and the kindred lines is far above any previous year, and Manager Chester I. Campbell and his fellow members of the show committee have full reason to be proud of the results attained.

Every inch of space has been utilized, and yet many prospective exhibitors find themselves outside the pale of the official show, simply for the reason that their application for space came too late to be filled by the committee. To tell the truth, the spaces at the disposal of the official were allotted months ago, and even some of the members of the association have not by any means as much space as they desire.

This lack of space means that the great majority of the dealers will be forced to show but one each of their several models.

This, however, will not operate against the show, but rather simplify matters, as instead of making an endless display of bodies, the exhibitors will unquestionably endeavor to display one model of their several chassis, with different body construction.

Goes to Ohio.

It was announced yesterday by F. E. Castle of the Atwood-Castle Company of Amesbury, Mass., that his concern had been reorganized and the capital increased to $300,000. The company will leave the Bay State and remove to Toledo, O., just as soon as a site can be found and the factory buildings erected. The concern has at present orders amounting to $300,000 and these must be filled as soon as possible, so that the Amesbury plant will be kept in operation until the company has its new factory running in Toledo and has caught up with its orders.

The reorganized concern will be called The Castle Lamp Company and will manufacture automobile lamps as well as all kinds of commercial vehicle and boat lamps. The old company now at Amesbury gives employment to 200 men, but this number will be increased to 500 as soon as the Toledo plant is in operation.

F. E. Castle, who is to be president and general manager of the company, said:

"We are moving from Amesbury because a great portion of the automobile industry of the country is centered in the three States of Ohio, Indiana and Michigan, and the Massachusetts town is too far away from the centre of production. I like Toledo very much and am glad to locate there. We will get under way just as soon as we can get our plant erected."

GIANTS OFFER KEELER $5,000 TO PLAY BALL

MARLIN, Tex., March 2.—John McGraw has sent a telegram to Willie Keeler, offering him a regular job in the lineup of the Giants at a salary said to be $5,000. Keeler has been given his unconditional release by the New York Americans.

"I think Keeler would be a great help to my club," said McGraw. "We have always been close personal friends and I believe there are many goods hits left in him. In addition to the help he gives as a hitter, his services in helping to train the young fellows could not be overestimated, and 'twould look like old times, wouldn't it now, to see Keeler, Robinson and myself all back on the same team."

An answer is expected in a few days. If Keeler accepts he will join the Giants immediately.

BOSTON COLLEGE WINS BIG MEET

The Boston College High School found Rindge Training School an easy victim in their first dual meet at the Boston College gymnasium yesterday afternoon by a score of 52 to 11.

The Boston College lads captured every event except the 25-yard dash and the high jump, which was won by Maxfield and Stengel of the University City. Walsh of Boston College was the star of the meet, capturing the 600-yard run and he also showed fine work in the relay race.

The 1,000-yard run was captured by Hunt of Boston College, who also won the shot-put, making a heave of thirty feet. The most exciting and last event of the day was the relay race, which was won by the college lads by a large margin.

BASEBALL NEWS NOTES

Evidently part of Johnny Kling's punishment for jumping the Cubs is to be left on the anxious seat for a while.

Caleb Fraser is probably through with baseball. Oh, well, Caleb has been pitching here, there and other places for twenty-two years.

* * *

"Miner" Brown is evidently still following his former occupation from the way he is digging the coin out of Charley Murphy.

*

The Phillies have seven southpaws, to wit: Foxen, Van Dyke, Rachlin, Brennan and three others whose names Herr Horace Fogel cannot recall.

* * *

George Mullin, premier pitcher of the pennant-winning Detroit Tigers and also of the American League, is already at work at San Antonio, Tex., where Hughie Jennings' crowd will train.

* * *

With ball teams starting out on training trips and pathfinder cars mapping out Glidden tour routes, isn't it about time some one tipped the weather man off that Summer is coming?

* * *

Detroit will win its fourth successive pennant and the second in the 1910 American League race will be a battle between Philadelphia or Boston, according to Addie Joss, the Cleveland pitcher.

* * *

Charley Comiskey's $10,000 beauty, Russell Blackburne, shortstop, is said to be built along the same lines as Hans Wagner. And, by the way, please keep that "e" tacked on to Russy's name, as it goes.

* * *

The way Frank Sparks gets away from that Spring training is a caution. Every year it has been the same old story from the management of clubs he plays with. "He will go this time," but still he stays home.

* * *

Orville Overall, the stalwart Cub pitcher, has received a handsome offer from a Chicago clothing manufacturer to appear for a week as a clothing model at the coming Coliseum fashion show. He has not yet signified his acceptance.

* * *

Herrmann and Dreyfuss are waving the old flag in the faces of the Murphy-Ebbetts-Brush-Robison contingent by making this move. An awful howl is sure to result. Tom Lynch is likely to take a hand in matters, too. It will give a fine opportunity to see just what kind of a fighter is the successor of Harry Pulliam.

* * *

There isn't the least doubt in the world but what both Dreyfuss and Herrmann would like to put their clubs in the American League, but both of them know too much baseball to make such a move in one leap. They realize that for the good of the game they must remain in the National League circuit!

STRAIGHT DOPE

FOR SPORT FANS

TOMMY O'KEEFE OF PHILADELPHIA was easily the brightest glimmer in the all-star show at the Armory Club last night, and many of those who saw him at work figure that he will take Dave Deshler's measure next Tuesday night. The bout between Pal Moore and Al Demont was disappointing, but the entertainment put up by O'Keefe made up for it. Pitted against a man weighing probably fifteen pounds more, Billy Reynolds's whirlwind came clean and made it so interesting for Scroggs that the latter's seconds did the only wise thing when they tossed the sponge in the air. Scroggs didn't have a chance, and take it from me, there are not a whole lot of lightweights who have much cleverness with O'Keefe. Tab him in your book. He'll be heard from later.

PAL MOORE MAY BE JIMMY DEFOREST'S meal ticket, and Jimmy may need the money, but if he doesn't give the boy a rest soon he'll be eating snowballs next winter. Moore is the boxing wonder of the year, but the best of them break when they are overworked. While at times last night Moore came across with a dazzling display, his work on the whole was a disappointment to the big crowd which turned out to see him. He showed that he needed a rest, and he surely has earned it.

EDDIE SHEVLIN IS A BATTLING good boy, and saved the day for the Boston contingent in last night's bouts, but I'm wondering what would have happened if he and little Moody had been nearer the same weight. I heard one man offer to wager last night that it would keep Eddie right busy making the welter limit. I don't know what he weighs, but he has filled out a lot since he first commenced fighting at the Armory, and I'd like to see him stacked up against some good boy with the weights even. So would a lot of others.

AND NOW THEY ARE YELLING FAKE over that Moran-Murphy fight out on the Coast. It doesn't look like a good yell to me, as the boys have met three or four times before, and the New York boxer has held the Britisher so close that it would take a man with a microscope to given Moran even a shade. Get it fixed firmly in your mind that Tommy Murphy is some boxer himself. But of course, the way you bet your money has a lot to do with the way you see things.

ON THE LEVEL, ISN'T THIS ONE about the worst you ever heard?

Someone asks how anybody can break down the defence of the Boston Red Sox when they are fortified with Steele and Wood. Anybody who tries it will probably be Stahl-ed. Good night!!!

ANY BASEBALL MANAGER WHO wants to land a good, reliable pitcher can get same by adressing A. G. Lewis, No. 417 Geneva avenue. Now, if he proves to be UNreliable and no good, don't blame me. He says he's good and he ought to know.

"A PERSONAL FRIEND OF BERT'S" writes in and asks me to say that Bert Mack, who has been the star pitcher of South Boston, was offered a chance with Providence, Old Colony League, and with the Lowell team of the New England League. He took the latter berth. I guess that will satisfy him, for I've printed what he wanted me to.

HERE'S A STORY ABOUT BIG BILL Kelliher that one of the all-night gang told yesterday at Clark's Hotel.

Big Bill Kelliher carried a wad of thousand dollar bills about with him and was always there to make the flash, but take it from me he wasn't there with much of a wallop when it came to jarring loose from any of it.

One night recently Big Bill and three of his friends took a ride with a cabman up to the shady district. When they alighted Big Bill said to the cabman, whose name is Libby:

"How much do we owe you, Libby?"

"Two dollars," said Libby; "fifty cents each for four of you."

Big Bill dug a dollar bill from his pocket and offered it to Libby with the remark:

"There's a chaser for you."

"Nothing doing with the one. I said two," replied Libby.

Big Bill tucked the dollar bill in the cabman's buttonhole, with a little advice:

"There's a chaser, and you'd better take it while you're conscious."

The cabman looked up and down Big Bill's massive form, pulled the dollar from his buttonhole and climbed on his seat, remarking:

"He may be a sport, he may be a lightwad, or that may be his case note. However, I'm still conscious and I'm driving away."

DAVE LANDERS—MATTY BALDWIN was born in Boston in 1884.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

Kindly let me know if Battler Nelson was champion lightweight the first time he fought Joe Gans, and was it the featherweight championship that Nelson won from Young Corbett in 1904. Yours truly, A. H. P.
Keene, N. H.

He was not lightweight champion until after his second fight with Gans. He never won a title by defeating Young Corbett.

No. 7 Bennett street, Woburn, Mass.

WELL, I RECKON THIS WILL STOP some of these young boxers who are trying to make capital out of challenges to Butcher Howe, that grand old warhorse who made Cambridge famous. It is an easy matter to try to build a reputation by challenging champions when you know they will pay no attention to you. The old battle scarred veteran, Howe, could not possibly accept the defi issued by an unknown like Harold, etc., and I am glad to see one of Mr. Howe's employes come to the front.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

Dear Sir—Would it be asking too much of you to please print this challenge in your valuable paper? I read very recently in your fight column a defiant challenge by one Harold Corbett Tuffin of Cambridge, Mass., to that "knight of the days gone by" here, "Butcher Gore Howe." Now as Mr. (B.) G. Howe could not possibly take notice of all these mushroom fighters, I, as an employe of said gentleman, would be perfectly willing, with Mr. Howe's consent, which I have, to box Corbett Tuffin anywhere in or around Boston, under any conditions that he may suggest. Thanking you, I remain, WILLIAM (RED) NAGLE.

The North Woburn baseball team would like to arrange a game for April 16, at home, with any strong team; also games for the balance of the season, at home or away. Address manager, WILLIAM RUPP.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

Dear Sir—Now, I ain't slinging no slush when I say I got a coming champ in Cyclone Fitzpatrick, who tips the scales at 105, and will match him against either Teddy Murphy, Kid Lippe or Danny Corcoran at a $50 side bet. Those wishing a match apply to
JACK SAVAGE,

Straight Dope, Boston American:

Dear Sir—Kindly insert the following in your column. I have a boy in my charge who is young "Doc" Lannon of the West End and who I will match with any of the local boys at 115-120 pounds. Kid Francis and Kid Wright preferred.
MAN. T. DE LAY.

P. S.—We will post any amount not exceeding $100 side bet. This is straight dope.

NELSON-WOLGAST PICTURES

CHICAGO, March 2.—Arrangements for the display of the pictures of the Nelson-Wolgast fight have been completed. Nelson's manager, John R. Robinson, will have charge of the exhibitions in the Middle West and expects the films to reach Chicago in nine days. Hester and W. H. Clemens have charge of the Coast exhibitions and the former also will handle New England and New York. It is expected the pictures will be shown here a week from Sunday.

CARNEGIE RAP MAY END BIG 'FRISCO BOUTS

SAN FRANCISCO, March 2.—That the interview given out by Andrew Carnegie at Santa Barbara, in which the laird of Skibo declared that San Fransisco is being held back through the city's reputation as a prize fight centre, has caused a sensation in local fighting circles.

It is generally conceded that the remarks of the philanthropist and steel magnate have put an end to negotiations for forty-five-round contests within the city limits and has practically annulled the proposed Nelson-Thompson fight, which was scheduled for the latter part of this month.

Business men throughout the city have taken up the issue, and it is being whispered about that not only will attempts be made to stop prize fighting in the city, but a bill will be presented to the next Legislature whose object will be to stop ring contests in the State of California.

The prominence given the interview is said to have caused such an impression that it would not be possible to get through a 45-round fight bill.

John A. Kelly, president of the San Francisco Labor Council, was the only member of that body to take a decided stand against the Carnegie interview.

"Perhaps," said he, "Mr. Carnegie's aesthetic nature is so well developed that he will not care to live in a city where they permit prize fights. Very likely the city can get along without him."

BOXING NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Tex Rickard and Jack Gleason are still getting into the newspapers through reports of their having fallen out. These promoters are playing this game off the boards and will have to dig up something new pretty soon.

* * *

Some of the Western papers say that so bitter is the feeling between Gleason and Rickard that the Jeff-Johnson bout is apt to fall through on that account. That's as good a way as any for these gentlemen to drop out and let Jim Coffroth, the real man behind, step in and run the show.

* * *

Jimmy De Forrest says Pal Moore beat Tommy O'Toole all the way in the six round go Saturday night at the National Club of Philadelphia. James is honest, and it must be so. The manager also says that the house was a record one for size.

* * *

Tom Jones, manager of Wolgast, must have pleasant dreaming of making millions with his man in the next year. Tom must have something great in sight when he can turn down an offer of $10,000 for ten weeks' stage work.

* * *

Kid Burns, who was busy looking for a scrap, has had to call off all deals as the result of a bad scalding he received a day or two ago. Burns was shut in a shower bath by mistake and the hot water was turned on. He saved his life by climbing out of a window, but he was pretty badly hurt. He will be out of the game for about a month.

* * *

Little George Monroe is still handing out the goods at his boxing club in Atlanta. Thinking that West and Buckles were stalling the other night he stopped the bout, and after being satisfied that things were on the level let the boys finish.

* * *

The only man in the country who ever stopped Ad Wolgast—Eddie Nelson is his name, and he turned the trick in three rounds—is still fighting preliminaries while the man he licked is champion of the world.

* * *

It will be some time before Johnny Coulon will be able to show how much better he is than any of the local bantams. New Orleans sports have taken such a fancy to little Johnny that they hate to have him leave the city and have booked him for another fight. He is to box Jim Kenrick again in the Southern city and this time the boys will go twenty rounds. A side bet of $1,000 has been made on the result, and moving pictures are to be taken.

* * *

* * *

Leach Cross's challenge to Champion Wolgast has been wired to the Coast, but to date no reply has been received. Wolgast may look upon that $2,500 side bet as easy money and jump at the chance to grab it.

* * *

Indianapolis is closed to boxers now. The police have ruled that no club can hold fights, and that put up the shutters.

* * *

Attell needs the money and has agreed to fight, but he insists on picking the men he boxes and looks for easy ones.

CHARGE FAKE IN MURPHY-MORAN BOUT

NEW YORK, March 2.—The fact that Harlem Tommy Murphy received a decision over English Owen Moran at the end of a twenty-round bout in 'Frisco Monday night, not only caused a general feeling of surprise here but provided ground for the belief that somebody must have cleaned up handsomely by taking the short end of the betting.

Many queer fights have been pulled off on the Coast. The gambling element has always shown unusual interest in them, and it is a tradition that the sure-thing men have seldom been wrong. Whether the Moran-Murphy fight was a frame-up to win sure money or not will probably remain an unsolved problem, but good ring judges who have seen these pugilists meet in several bouts here cannot make themselves believe that Monday night's contest was a real test.

SOMERVILLE HIGH BATTERY MEN OUT

The battery candidates for the Somerville High School baseball team have been called by Coach Allie Dickinson. Eleven men answered the call and loosened up their arms in the Somerville Y. M. C. A. gym. The men will work for the next week, doing light tossing and then it is expected that Coach Dickinson will issue the call for infielders. Garland and Glun are two of the most prominent candidates for the backstop duty. Both men are former members of the Boston English High School team and are counted on as valuable men. McDougal and Dickson are also looked on as having a chance to get the catcher's berth. The twirlers who turned out yesterday are Pike, Lewis, Ruff, Laurie, Wing, Cliff and Prior. All these men seem to have an equal chance for the regular team.

FIVE PIRATES IN HOLD-OUT CLUB

PITTSBURG, March 1.—The signed contract of Pitcher Harry Camnitz has been received at the headquarters of the Pittsburg Club. Camnitz comes here from the McKeesport team of the Ohio and Pennsylvania league. He is a brother of Howard Camnitz, the pitcher, who is still with the hold-outs.

Others who have received contracts but have not yet signed them, are Hans Wagner and Frank Dobson, infielders; "Sam" Leever and "Lefty" Liefield, pitchers.

Discontent Is Often The Tonic for Success

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1910, by the American-Journal-Examiner.

I ASKED the rock beside the road what my existence lent.
It answered, "For a million years my heart has been content."

I asked the truffle-seeking swine, as rooting by he went,
"What is the keynote of your life?" He grunted out, "Content."

He plodded on his changeless way, and said, "I am content."

I asked a plutocrat of greed on what his thoughts were bent.
He chinked the silver in his purse and said, "I am content."

I asked the mighty forest tree from from where its force was sent.
Its thousand branches spoke as one, and said, "From discontent."

I asked the message speeding on, by what great law was rent
God's secret from the waves of space. It said, "From discontent."

I asked the marble, where the works of God and man were blent,
What brought the statue from the block. It answered, "Discontent."

I asked an Angel, looking down on earth with gaze intent,
How man should rise to larger growth. Quote he, "Through discontent."

ARE you discontented with your life? Well, then, there is something in you which can change your situation and bring you into more satisfying conditions if you set to work.

Contentment is not always a virtue.

If you are only using half your brain power, if only half your capabilities are brought into action, then you have no right to be content.

We are placed on earth to use every particle of ability we possess, to develop every brain cell.

If you are not doing something with all your might, then you are "sinning against the Holy Ghost"—your highest self. You are letting priceless "mind stuff" go to waste.

And it is all your fault.

The Compelling Human Soul

If you desire better opportunities and greater advantages to come to you they would have to come if you desired them with all your mental powers.

Nothing can withstand the intense, all-compelling desire of a human soul.

People talk about not succeeding because they have "no pull."

There is no needle which can withstand the pull of the North Star. Scatter a hundred pieces of steel on a table, and drop a magnet among them and every particle will fly to it.

The star and the magnet have the pulling power.

If your soul, your mind, your brain, your heart, is filled with that same magnetic desire to possess anything, it will have to come to you just as the pieces of steel go to the magnet.

No one else can obtain anything for you which is worth while. You must have the desire so strong and so persistent that you could not ask any one else to get it for you, before you will have that pulling power.

The North Star always wants the needle.

But however much you desire something, you will find that you are unable to sit down and hold your mind focused in that desire for ten minutes. You are sure to scatter your thoughts in a dozen different directions before five minutes have elapsed.

Use Constructive Discontent

That is why you haven't what you want.

That is why you are dissatisfied with yourself.

But if your discontent is the constructive kind you will be able to use it as a stairway on which to climb to better things.

If it is only the weak, vacillating, petty discontent of one who does nothing well, it will do you no good.

For there is a destructive and a constructive discontent.

Find out which it is that disturbs you.

If it is the constructive, cultivate it until you change your environment and get what you want.

If it is the destructive kind, get rid of it.

Golf for Women

By WINIFRED BLACK

AMELIA BARR says she doesn't believe in golf.

"It's no game for ladies," declares Mrs. Barr. In fact, I believe that athletics are the ruination of modern woman. It's all very well for a girl to row and paddle, and ride and swim—but I don't think she can do all these things and be a really gentle, feminine, refined woman."

O, fie, Mrs. Barr. Fie! Fie! And you a woman of brains!

The coarsest woman I know is one who never goes out of her house, except to church, and I'm always afraid to talk to her in the presence of a young person, for fear of what my exemplary, church-going friend will blurt out.

Refinement is born in the cradle with a woman, Mrs. Barr, and so is coarseness. No refined woman will ever learn to be coarse just because she can play golf.

Sick women are out of the fashion; for that much we have to thank the modern woman. It used to be the thing to faint and have hysterics, and no perfect lady ever tried to walk a whole mile without swooning before she got to the end of it.

Those times are past, Mrs. Barr, long past. Don't you try to bring them back. The modern man wants a chum, not a little, hysterical doll.

He wants a companion—not an invalid to nurse.

Golf has done more to keep the middle-aged woman from degenerating into a sniffling semi-invalid than any doctor in the world has ever dreamed of doing.

You can't play golf and worry about the amount of money husband spends for his luncheon downtown.

Golf makes you so hungry yourself that you're willing to actuly spend a whole fifty-cent piece on your own luncheon, and you'll forget all about everything but the score by the time dinner is ready, and perhaps you'll even persuade husband to get away from the office a little early and be something besides a money-making machine for an hour or so every day.

No, no, Mrs. Barr! You'll never get us back into the camphor and peppermint sisterhood again. We're just finding out how much fun it is to be alive, we women, and we're going to keep right on finding out more and more every day.

TO-DAY'S BEST STORY

TWO colored women were standing on a downtown corner yesterday afternoon talking.

"Miss Williams have came home," said one.

The other laughed. "Ma goodness!" she said. "Why don't yo' learn yoh grammah?"

"What did I say that wah grammahless?" asked the other.

"You said 'have came.'"

The first speaker was provoked. "Well, yo' knows so much about grammah, now tell me what should I a-said?" she demanded.

"Yo' should a-said, 'Miss Williams HAS came home,'" replied the other.

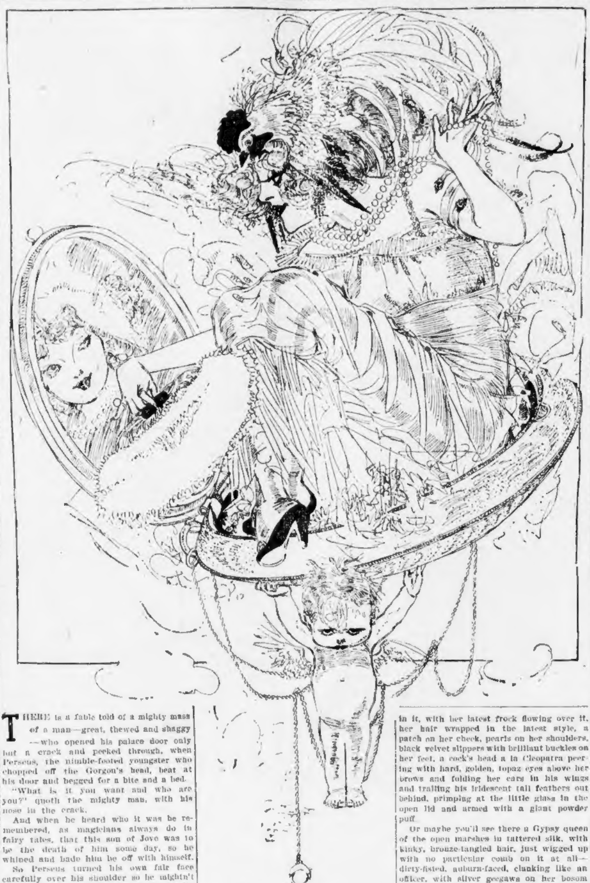
The Vanity Box

By Nell Brinkley

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner



THERE is a fable told of a mighty mass of a man—great, thewed and shaggy—who opened his palace door only but a crack and peeked through, when Perseus, the nimble-footed youngster who chopped off the Gorgon's head, beat at his door and begged for a bite and a bed.

"What is it you want and who are you?" quoth the mighty man, with his nose in the crack.

And when he heard who it was he remembered, as magicians always do in fairy tales, that this son of Jove was to be the death of him some day, so he whined and bade him be off with himself.

So Perseus turned his own fair face carefully over his shoulder so he mightn't see it, and then he switched the deadly horror of the Gorgon's dead face full into the mighty man's. And straighway he turned to earth and stone.

The hair of his head and cheeks turned into great black forests; his shoulders and arms and chest into vast cliffs; his head into a hoary peak; and after that the weight of all the sky, with its stars, rested upon him. And idling round in galleries that are peopled with the white statues of myth-folk, or fluttering the leaves of a book that exhales the breath of old dreams and old tales, you might come on a gnarled figure of him, the mighty Atlas, frozen in a shape of eternal weariness with the universe on his shoulders.

Love's shoulders are narrow. He's not a mighty man like that!—his feet are soft and little—his hands are so much silk and dough, stained by the kind gods with a tender pink; his back is limber and frail—his bones are soft—he is a baby, an everlasting baby!

But for all that HE carries around the universe—the heavens with their mysteries and their stars and moon and sun and music, the earth with its strife and its humans and its puzzles and its beauties—on his thin nubbins of shoulders.

And if you look long and hard into the noon-day horizon where it is orange and lazy, you might see him and his load standing patiently.

The Universe is girlhood and a vanity box and Love lugs the load

Then, if you look longer and harder, the whole mass will take shape and come sharper and cleaner, and first thing you'll see what it is he carries. Just a vanity box and a girl!

The universe with all its stars and sun and moon and mysteries and music, the earth with all its strife and its humans and its puzzles and its beauties—just a girl and a vanity box

A vanity box with an enigma coiled up in it, with her latest frock flowing over it, her hair wrapped in the latest style, a patch on her cheek, pearls on her shoulders, black velvet slippers with brilliant buckles on her feet, a cock's head a la Cleopatra peering with hard, golden, topaz eyes above her brows and folding her ears in his wings and trailing his iridescent tail feathers out behind, primping at the little glass in the open lid and armed with a giant powder puff.

Or maybe you'll see there a Gypsy queen of the open marshes in tattered silk, with kinky, bronze-tangled hair, just wigged up with no particular comb on it at all—dirty-fisted, auburn-faced, clanking like an officer, with silver geegaws on her bosom and ears and dark fingers—for a cock's feathers, a bunch of marsh grass torn away from its salty earth and set in her wild hair; but they're sisters and their name is vanity and it's all Love's fault.

Blame it all on Love!

The universe is girlhood and a vanity box, and Love lugs the load.

If the kind god's hand that gives the little chap eternal life, and he should die or get tired and go off quite quietly and never come back, all the Bettinas would drop their powder puffs into the bay and absently would they twist their pretty hair in a hard knot behind and with a deep sigh pick up a nail for a hairpin and jam it in!

THE MAN FROM HOME

BY BOOTH TARKINGTON AND HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.

CHAPTER XVI.—(Continued)

"MY dear child! What are you doing here in this dreadful place with this dreadful person?" she demanded shrilly.

"My dear! Les covenances!" cried madame.

"Ethel! I am surprised! Come away at once!" demanded Horace.

"Oh, I say, you know, Miss Ethel, really!" echoed Almeric. "You can't stay here, you know!"

Pike stopped them with a gesture and said:

"I'm her guardian, and she's here by my authority, and, what's more, she'll stay by my authority."

Horace turned to the Earl.

"Lord Hawcastle, will you insist upon Ethel's leaving? It's quite on the cards we shall have a disagreeable scene here."

Hawcastle smiled evilly.

"I see no reason for it. We're here simply for Mr. Pike's answer. He knows where he stands, and he knows where we stand," said the earl suavely, and the American met his smile evenly.

"I reckon you're right so far," he said.

"And your answer will be yes?" asked the Earl, but Pike shook his head.

"You're wrong there," he answered, and Hawcastle changed front in an instant.

"Perhaps you are right, Mr. Granger-Simpson," he said. "There may be painful things done. Better your sister were spared them. Take her away."

Pike snapped at them all and moved to the door, where he faced them.

"Miss Ethel, you'll stay right where you are!" he commanded, and, paying no attention, Pike turned to Hawcastle.

"You're here for an answer, you say?"

"Yes," answered the Earl, after an instant's pause, and Dan went closer to him.

"An answer to what?" he demanded, looking the other in the eye.

"An answer to our request that you accede to the wishes of this young lady," replied the Earl uneasily.

"And if I don't what are you going to do?" demanded Pike quickly. Horace at once broke in.

"Ethel, you must go!" he implored. But Pike waved him to silence.

"Tell her. Why do you come here sure of the answer you want?" he [illegible] savagely.

"A gentleman would spare her that," said Hawcastle, with uneasiness, and the American laughed.

"I won't!" he snapped. "Speak out! Why?" But the Earl would not answer directly, so Pike turned to Ethel.

"This afternoon I tried to help a poor devil, a broken down Russian running away from Siberia, where he'd been for nine years."

Ethel half rose in her chair and faced him eagerly.

"A poor, weak thing," he went on, "hounded like you've seen a rat in the gutter by dogs and bootblacks. Some of your friends here saw us bring him into this apartment. They know we've got him here now. If I don't agree to hand over you and $750,000 of the money John Simpson made it means that the man I tried to help goes back to Siberia and I go to an Italian jail for two years or as much more as they can make it."

"Nonsense," cried Hawcastle. But Ethel waved him aside and turned with a withering look on Pike.

"I knew you had some further humiliation in store for me. Do you think I would believe that an English nobleman would stoop——"

Pike interrupted her ruthlessly and bitterly.

"Stoop?" he cried. "Why, ten years ago in St. Petersburg there was a poor devil of a revolutionist who in his crazy patriotism took government money for the cause he believed in. He made the mistake of keeping that money in the house, when this man"—he pointed to Hawcastle—"knew it was there. He also made the mistake of having a wife this man coveted and stole, as he coveted and stole the money. Oh, he made a good job of it! Don't think that to-night is the first time he has given information to the police. He did it then, and the husband went to Siberia——"

Hawcastle was the picture of amazement and horror as he staggered up.

"A dastardly slander!" he cried.

"And he'll do it again to-night!" Pike went on. "I go to an Italian jail"—he whirled and pointed an accusing finger at "Mme. de Champigny—"and that same poor devil of a husband goes back to Siberia!"

"It's—it's a ghastly lie!" croaked Hawcastle, his face livid.

"You came for your answer," went on Pike stridently, "and, by the living God, I've got it for you!" He stepped to the door of the inner chamber and threw it open.

"Ivanoff!" he called, and the Russian came into the room. At the sight of him Hawcastle fell back against the mantel, and the Countess collapsed in a heap on the floor. Ivanoff saw none but her and, striding to her, lifted both clinched hands above her head.

"Ivan—oh, mother of God!—Ivan! Don't kill me!" she gasped.

For a moment he stood over her, then collapsed into a chair, where he wilted, sobbing violently.

Learn to Cook, Girls, If You'd Be Good Wives

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

IT IS just as important to marry a woman who can cook as it is to marry a man who can earn his own living.

The woman may never have to cook or the man to work, but each should know how to if the occasion arose.

The woman who knows nothing about cooking will never be a capable housekeeper. When things go wrong, she will not know how to right them.

I know a woman who earns her living by her pen, and she can't make coffee or boil a potato. If she had a house of her own and an ignorant cook, what would she do? Become a victim of chronic indigestion or spend all her money on restaurants.

There is no necessity for understanding fancy cooking, but every girl should be taught all the branches of plain cooking.

She should be taught how to make nourishing soups, to cook meat, vegetables and bread.

Where Ignorance Is Costly

Ignorance is the basis of all extravagance. If you buy soup meat and half cook it you might just as well throw it away, for if you cook meat to a crisp and vegetables not half enough, or to a pulp, there is no nourishment in them.

If you want real soup, this is how to make it: Buy a shank of beef, a knuckle of veal and four pigs' hocks. Put the whole in a big kettle, with a handful of salt, and let it simmer all day.

When it cools it should be a firm mass of jelly.

You can flavor it to suit. Soup made in that way is a meal in itself, and you will have enough of it to last several days.

Remember, girls, that every woman should know something about cooking.

If I were a man, I wouldn't think of marrying a girl who knew all about the piano and nothing about the kitchen range.

Poetry is beautiful, but you must live with fact.

Not one girl in a dozen is very keen on learning the art of cooking.

Singing, playing the piano, painting—all seem so much more romantic, more like accomplishments. But I can assure you, girls, that many of the greatest artists know a good deal about cooking.

Tetrazzini, Cook as Well as Singer

Tetrazzini has a marvelous voice, and she can also work marvels with the chafing dish and salad bowl.

Don't for a moment imagine that many of the leaders of fashion are ignorant in regard to cooking. They know how to direct their servants, and when the cook makes a mistake the mistress knows what is wrong.

Queen Victoria of England, who was a wise and splendid mother as well as queen, had every one of her daughters taught to cook and to sew.

Don't disdain the old-fashioned, womanly accomplishments. They are the ones that make the basis of a happy, comfortable home.

A man loves to boast of his wife's qualities as a cook and housekeeper. He likes to have the other fellows envy him his perfect dinner and cosey home.

Don't attempt too much; begin with the simple things and gradually work up.

You probably know how to make fudge and a Welsh rabbit, but they don't amount to much as a steady diet.

Take my advice, girls; learn to cook.

Professor Polydore

Talks on the Popularity of Love Tales

By IRVING R. BACON

MRS. POLYDORE—I wonder what there is in love stories that gives them a perennial charm? And, by the way, I have noticed, too, that you men are no less interested in heart romances than we women, despite Byron's word for it that

"Love is of man's life
A thing apart;
'Tis woman's whole existence."

POLYDORE—You have often heard me speak of the protuberances in the hand which we palmists call "mounts," and each of which indicates a different type of humanity? Well, dearest, there are seven primary types of this kind, and then an infinite variety formed of the commingling of the primary types. Each type has its own characteristics.

MRS. P.—You're fetching a pretty far compass if that's the preface to an explanation of why we all love love stories.

The Mounts on the Hand

POLY.—Sometimes we reach a goal quickest by a roundabout route, my dear. So if you'll have patience I'll continue. One of the mounts is at the base of the index finger. It is the Mount of Jupiter, and if it is proportionately the most developed it indicates that its possessor is of the Jupitarian type. You will find him ambitious, proud, haughty, intolerant of interference, extravagant, generous, honorable and just.

The mount under the neighboring finger is that of Saturn. If this is proportionately the most prominent its possessor will be sad, cynical, wise, a great student, fond of the sciences and always mysterious.

Next comes the Mount of Apollo. That shows the brilliant, artistic fellow. Then the Mecurian, who, according as either the first, the second or the third phalanx of the little finger is longest, excels in writing or speaking, or as a physician or as a merchant.

A Melancholy, Musical Chap

There are two Mounts of Mars—the lower, which occupies part of the edge of the hand beneath the Mount of Mercury, and the upper mount, on the opposite edge of the hand, between the Mount of Jupiter and the thumb. The latter mount indicates a warlike, aggressive spirit, while the upper mount on the other side of the palm betokens power of resistance, hopefulness and buoyancy.

Now, if you will but bear with me through the remaining two mounts, all will easily be clear to you. The Mount of the Moon is directly beneath the upper Mount of Mars and extends down to the wrist. Like the Saturnian, this chap, too, is of a melancholy turn. He is very musical, particularly as regards harmony as distinguished from melody. He is also a great traveler and is forever on the go, if not in reality, at least in imagination; for of all the types his is the most imaginative. He is usually cold and selfish, but excels as a writer and in the facility with which he acquires languages.

And now, finally, in our trip around the hand, we have reached the ball of the thumb. This is called the Mount of Venus. Even when not well developed, it is the largest of the mounts; and, therefore, has to be strikingly large and prominent before it can be pronounced to be the leading mount. When it is so, its possessor is gay, jolly, vivacious, and fond of music of the melodic sort. He is the handsomest and most affectionate of all the types, and craves constantly for pleasure, to which he makes everything else in life subservient. Love is his paramount concern.

Why the World "Loves a Lover"

MRS. P.—I am beginning to see the point. Your idea is that, as the Mount of Venus is so large, there is some measure of its qualities in every type of humanity.

POLY.—Precisely; even though any other mount is excessively large and the Mount of Venus relatively small. To be altogether devoid of the flame of love, the Mount of Venus in a person's hand should have to be very small and flat, indeed. This is rare. And therefore the rule holds good for practically all mankind that "all the world loves a lover." And this is the reason, too, why the stories of love never grow old or tiresome. But just why nature has seen fit to make the Venusian type so all-pervading, I shall tell you some other time, if you care to listen.

THE REASON

"Do be quiet. Don't you know that there's a visitor in the next room?" said Frances to her little brother.

"How do you know? You haven't been in."

"But," said Frances, "I heard mamma saying 'My dear!' to papa."

ANOTHER FORM OF IT

Visitor—Come here, my dear, whose pretty little girl are you?

Housemaid—'Sh. Mrs. Jimes! The courts 'aven't decided yet."

Tuileries Dance in Honor Of Miss Dorothy Draper

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

The Lenten quiet which has brooded over Boston since Ash Wednesday is surely dispelled to-day, for the social calendar is simply brimming over with smart events.

Besides the opera, the innumerable dinners, the usual Wednesday hospitality of the Sewing Circle of this year's buds, the performance of the amateurs at Whitney Hall, and the bazaar at Horticultural Hall, there is the dance which Colonel William D. Sohier is giving to-night at the Tuileries in honor of Miss Dorothy Draper, and the lecture Miss Ethel Arnold is to give at the home of Mrs. Benjamin F. Pitman, No. 121 Carlton street, Brookline.

* * *

Miss Arnold, who is the niece of Matthew Arnold and is fresh from the stamping ground of the suffragettes in England, has chosen for her subject "The Economic Position of Women in Regard to the Vote," the same lecture which she delivered at the Garden Theatre in New York last week where it was most enthusiastically received.

Miss Arnold, though not a suffragette, is as ardent a suffragist as her sister, Mrs Humphrey Ward, is an anti-suffragist. Among the patronesses for the lecture are Mrs. Barthold Schlesinger, Msr Benjamin F. Pitman, Miss Emily Shepard, Mrs. George H. Page, Miss Albertina von Arnim, Mrs. G. B. Newell, Mrs. H. L. Bearse, Mrs. James Lovell Little and Mrs. Franklin Walter, Jr. Guests have been invited to meet Miss Arnold and a reception will be held at the close of the lecture.

Much to the reret of the debutante set Mlle. Prudon, who has spent the Winter in Boston, coming over with her stepmother, Mme. Prudon, who before her marriage was Nellie Eldredge of Beacon street, to make her debut in Boston, is returning to her home in Geneva, Switzerland, on the 28th. On Monday night Mlle. Prudon, who is an attractive brunette with an abundance of vivacity and charm, was one of the most popular girls on view at the opera and had the usual number of admirers in her train. The Prudons are leaving town to-day to visit Mme. Prudon's aunts, the Misses Williams of Concord, and they will later go to visit Mrs. Franklin Q. Brown at Dobb's Ferry.

* * *

Among the members of our smart set about arriving on the other side of the ocean are Miss Rosamond Fay, who is to join her grandmother, Mrs. Gardiner Greene Hammond, and her sisters, the Misses Elizabeth and Alice Fay, in the South of France; Mr. and Mrs. John Lawrence and their daughters, Miss Hester and Miss Mary Lawrence.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Winslow of Chestnut street have gone to Mexico City for a short rip, taking with them their daughter, Miss Charlotte Winslow and her intimate friend, Miss Catherine Bowles, who made her debut the past Winter.

* * *

Lieutenant and Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant, formerly of Brookline, who are making their home in Washington this Winter, are entertaining Major-General and Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, who are in Washington this week and are receiving many attentions from the smart set. The French Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand to a dinner at which General and Mrs. Grant were the guests of honor, and among the other guests were Mr. and Mrs. James R. Garfield, the United States Minister to Denmark and Mrs. Maurice Egan, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Knox Smith, Mitchell Innes of the British Embassy, Representative and Mrs. George D. [illegible], Mrs. Joseph Robson, Mrs. Charles Dana, Mrs. J[illegible] [illegible], Mr. and Mrs. William H. Wilmer, [illegible], M. de la Rocca and M. Tailhaud of the French Embassy.

* * *

Count and Countess Lazeo Szecheny who have been the house guests of Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. George von L. Meyer have left the Capital [illegible] in New York. The Count and Countess have but recently returned from the South where they have been passing the [illegible] part of the early Lenten period. Countess Moltke, the Misses and Julia and Alice Meyer, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Countess Luise von Bernstorff, Miss Elkins, Miss May, Miss Townsend, the Minister from Spain, Countess Gizycka, Count Ladislas Cziraky, A. C. Hotrsmann, Prince Henry de Ligne, J. W. de Peaufort, Craig Wadsworth, R. S. Reynolds Hitt, Captain Butt, William Hitt and C. R. Simpkins were among the guests at the dinner which Mr. and Mrs. Meyer gave for the Count and Countess. Countess Moltke has since left Washington for a short visit in Boston with her father, Nathaniel Thayer of Fairfield street.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Dunne of this city are making a short visit in New York this week and are stopping at the Hotel Knickerbocker.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw and Quincy A. Shaw, Jr., of Exeter street, are in New York for a short visit. They are stopping at the Hotel Wolcott and are not expected at their Exeter street home here before the last of the week.

* * *

Miss Susan Appleton of this city is in New York and is the house guest of Mrs. George B. DeForrest at her town house.

* * *

All the younger members of society are much interested in the invitations which President and Mrs. Taft have just issued for the dance that is to be given by them on Easter Monday for Miss Helen Taft and Robert Taft, who will both be at home from college for the Easter holidays. Miss Laura Merriam, sister of Mrs. John T. Wheelwright of this city, and the Misses Julia and Alice Meyer, who are so well known in Boston, will doubtless be among the guests at this all important social function for the nation's first maid and gallant.

* * *

Among the several small select house dances that are being arranged for members of the youthful contingent is that which Mrs. Hall McAllister is to give this month in honor of her daughter. The dance will be given at the Gorham Hubbard house on Beacon street, which the McAllisters are occupying this Winter.

Frohman Sees "Spitfire" at Castle Square Theatre

By FELIX ST. CLAIR.

When Daniel Frohman goes to the Castle Square Theatre to-day there will be a bright young man to meet him and say: "Walk right in, Mr. Frohman." He will be conducted to an excellent seat and will be welcome to witness the most ambitious effort of the John Craig Stock Company, the production of "The Spitfire" by Edward Peple, author of "The Prince Chap."

When Peple took the manuscript of "The Spitfire" to New York managers they said. "The action is laid on a yacht. This will never do. Can't you transfer it to a balloon or a submarine or something novel. There have been so many yacht plays."

The big scene of the play, a shipwreck, did not appeal either, because there have been numerous shipwrecks.

It was not until Peple met John Craig that a manager was found who read enough of the play to see what it was all about. Craig took a chance and produced it. The New York managers gave him the laugh, but their scouts who attended the opening performance sent over such reports of the piece that the big managers themselves intend to come to Boston and look at it.

I saw a performance of "The Spitfire" yesterday afternoon. It was staged as well as any of the big producers would stage it. The company was far more competent than many which are booked at $2 houses. It may not appeal to the big managers as the sort of show that will make money for them, but I know that it is thoroughly enjoyable.

"The Spitfire" is a high-class melodrama, its lines provoke laughter, and many of its situations are novel and amusing.

Yacht Still Productive.

The managers thought that the possibilities of a yacht had been exhausted. Well, they haven't.

"The Spitfire" goes to sea in command of the owner's daughter, who is also a spitfire. The yacht rescues a man who fell overboard from a passing tug, and the young woman, thinking him a spy come aboard to pry into her father's affairs, makes him work his passage. He makes love to her while polishing guard rails and holystoning decks. When she wishes he had never come on board he promptly jumps overboard and she is compelled to stop the ship to rescue him. She finally encourages him to engage in a fist fight with the mate of the yacht, and she suspects him of breaking open her father's safe. The complications are thoroughly reasonable and highly entertaining.

Desert Island Off Jersey.

There is a conventional shipwreck and a charming scene on a desert island, which in this case is off the New Jersey shore.

Mary Young is a most bewitching little spitfire. John Craig is manly and has a light comedy touch which pleases. Donald Meek is a very funny villain, and the others in the company are sufficiently good.

The Castle Square company is a sort of happy family, most of whom have been associated for several years. Mary Young is John Craig's wife, and she has two or three brothers who appear in the various productions.

The trouble with drawing the attention of New York managers to your productions, Mr. Craig, is that they may walk off with some of your best actors.

Tonight's Opera

"Mefistofele," the biggest production yet made by the Boston Opera Company, is given for the fourth time to-night. The cast is the same as at the premier two weeks ago, and Frances Alda will come over from New York to sing Marguerite.

Constantino again sings Faust, Mardones is Mefistofele, Boninsegna, Helen of Troy and the other principals the same as at former performances.

The opera is by Boito and is written upon the theme of Goethe's "Faust." It is in two parts. The first deals with the story of Faust and Marguerite, and the second with the Helen of Troy episode. The great scene of the opera is the Witch's Sabbath on the summit of the Brocken.

Women Not Artistic? Oh Fie, Dr. Thomas

Not one woman in a hundred has a true artistic sense.

Woman is unfitted by nature for true appreciation of things artistic.

She lacks poise and balance.

She shows no stability of purpose, no discrimination, and as artist or sane critic of art is woefully incompetent.

She does not and cannot understand.

—Dr. John J. Thomas's views of the capabilities of women.

Women painters and sculptors who have accomplished things are vigorous in their replies to the assertions of Dr. John Jenks Thomas, the Boston physician and neurologist, who says it is impossible for women to be artists. School teachers they may become, politicians even, but artists never. Some of the pungent sentences attributed to Dr. Thomas are quoted above.

A reporter secured the opinions of half a dozen representative women artists and sculptors. Every one has won medals and other prizes at expositions, in many of which most of the competitors were men.

There is Miss Evelyn Longman, sculptor. Three years ago she triumphed over thirty-two competitors, most of them men, and got the contract for the construction of two massive bronze doors to be placed in the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Miss Clara McChesney won a gold medal at a Philadelphia Art Club show for the best water color, and most of the disappointed aspirants were men.

How About Rosa Bonheur.

Another painter of high rank is Lillian Matilde Genth, who won the Mary Smith prize awarded by the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts in 1904, and the Shaw Memorial prize awarded by the National Academy of Design, New York, in 1908.

Women artists want to know if the learned Boston physician ever heard of Rosa Bonheur, Mme. Le Brun or Angelica Kaufman, and whether he considers them artists. Coming down to the present day, they want to know where the man was who stood higher in the art world than Cecilia Beaux of Philadelphia.

"Women have intuition and sensitiveness," said Miss Longman. "In work that requires sympathetic treatment they more than hold their own."

"Dr. Thomas is not taking into account the exceptional woman, and it is the exceptional woman who is the artist," said Miss Genth. "A woman has to be a thinker to be a true artist."

"No Sex in Art."

Mrs. Rhoda Holmes Nichols, who won the Queen's scholarship in England and holds more than a dozen medals, said: "There is no sex in art. Women are handicapped by many duties, the duties of the home, for instance, but despite that the work they display at the exhibitions is of a very high class."

Mrs. Albright Wigand, winner of the Samuel T. Shaw prize for the best work of any kind done by an American woman artist, said that Dr. Thomas's arguments were "foolish." She asserted Miss Beaux and Miss Mary Cassatt were as well known as any man painter of the time.

Kenyon Cox, whose wife is an artist, said he did not know any men who could paint as fine portraits of children as some women can. "Their work is of a much higher quality than that of men in those branches of art requiring a loving and sympathetic observation," added Mr. Cox.

Sure, You Will

By KENNETT HARRIS

As you look on the waste of your small back yard,
With its blanket of snow o'erlaid,
Do you dream of the time you'll be working hard,
With your rake and your hoe and spade?
Do you long to clear up all the rusty cans
And the trash? I suppose you do,
I expect you are busy with Springtime plans.
Me, too.

Are you having fond visions of clinging vines
And the scent of the blooming rose,
And of tulip beds and their bright signs
And the flash of the "piney-blows"?
Do you yearn for the lettuce and beets and peas
And the radishes peeping through?
Are you simply crazy for things like these?
Me, too.

When the wind's from the south and the grass grows green
And the robins begin to sing,
Will you get out and dig, will you rake and clean,
Will you cultivate one blamed thing?
No; you'll hire a strong man at two dollars a day,
And you'll stick to your chair like glue.
Me, too.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

The floating supply of securities of the best class are steadily being reduced by foreign and domestic buying, and a conservative bull position at this time appears to be the sensible one. The hard tone of the list is caused by the lack of pressure to sell.

$ $ $

In speculative circles there is a disposition to look for what they denominate as a last break, on which traders may go long of the market for the Spring rise which is expected to come about.

$ $ $

Powerful financial interests in the street are keeping stocks within bounds in order to facilitate investment absorption. If it were not for this there is no doubt there would be an advance of more than ordinary proportions.

$ $ $

State street will forgive Mr. Morgan a good many things, and that little Steel episode in particular, if he will, as the Morgan element strongly intimates is his intention, do some proselyting in Europe for the bull side of the market.

Pennsylvania and its allied stocks are strong, following publication of the annual report of the company, which the Street considers remarkably good. The company shows elements of latent strength in the fact that a dead investment of $102,000,000 in the New York terminals will soon be earning money and that it is making money rapidly through the "Panhandle" and the Norfolk & Western.

$ $ $

An important event is official confirmation of the report of two weeks ago of the resignation of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., from the Board of the Steel Trust. Mr. Rockefeller is succeeded by Henry Walters of Baltimore. Mr. Walters is an intimate friend of J. P. Morgan and controls Atlantic Coast line through direct ownership. He is a Morgan man, if he can be classed as anything, and this drifting of the Steel Trust away from the Standard Oil and toward Morgan is a good thing for its stockholders.

New York Central has come into favor again through the declaration of an extra dividend of 6 per cent. by the Lake Shore. This makes Lake Shore an 18 per cent. stock and insures an increase of the Central dividend to 6 per cent. Central through its holding of Lake Shore will get $2,717,352 of the extra dividend. Central's total income from Lake Shore in 1910 will be about $8,152,056.

$ $ $

Harriman lines in their report for January showed a small increase of net earnings, which compares with losses reported by the Rock Island, the Atchison and the Missouri, Kansas & Texas. The earnings of the Union Pacific and Southern were regarded as contributory factors to higher quotations, notwithstanding that Union's net increase was only $155,267 in January. On the other hand, Southern's net enhanced $800,196. The difference in the result is inevitably ascribed to the geographical position of the lines. The Southern encounters practically no inclement weather, while the Union gets the brunt of snowstorms, sleet, etc., which caused an increase of $1,023,305.

A reduction of one-quarter of one per cent. in the quarterly dividend on the old Rock Island stock is to have accepted as a wholly negative factor. Five per cent. per annum on the original issue is sufficient to take care of the interest on the bonds, now that the Frisco system has been separated from the Rock Island.

The Reading Company announces net earnings for January of $1,817,284 for all companies, compared with $1,307,889 a year ago. Canadian Pacific is another railroad that shows material increase for January, the increase being $926,846 in net. The road is making record earnings, the net showing an increase of $6,955,545 since July 1. Announcement is made that $12,000,000 more will be appropriated this year for irrigation in southern Alberta, bringing 800,000 acres more of land under cultivation.

Central Leather insiders are raging because their pool operations have been disclosed. According to Messrs Austin & Souther, Boston curb sales during February totalled 1,492,902 shares. Oneco led in the higher priced stocks with 72,087 shares and Eclipse Oil in the cents stocks with 254,580 shares.

For the first time in a long period a decrease is shown in the foreign visible supply of copper. For the last half of February stocks decreased 647 tons.

LOCAL MARKET IS ANIMATED

STATE STREET, March 2.—Late strength of the London market encouraged Wall Street bulls to push the advantage, and after a slight reaction from the opening prices improved and the market became considerably more animated at the higher price levels.

Reports on the steel business have become suddenly highly favorable and this stock and Amalgamated were the leaders in the industrial list, although the equipment stocks also showed strength. Steel moved up over a point as did Amalgamated also. Talk is that the average orders of the Steel Corporation will have reached 50,000 tons per day before the close of the current month. The resignation of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., from the Steel directorate is not surprising, as these interests have comparatively small holdings of the stock now.

Locally Lake Copper, as usual, was the feature with a three-point rise. North Butte and Calumet & Arizona were also strong. Oil stiffened fractionally, and American Zinc rose almost two points from last night's closing. Some favorable news is expected on the latter.

Smelters was favorably affected in New York by declaration of the usual dividend, and Utah Copper improved slightly. Interboro preferred sold up over a point and Chesapeake & Ohio over a point. Reading rose 1⅛, Rock Island 1¼ and Colorado Fuel was also strong.

Erie first preferred rose 2½ on London buying. Both the Hill and Harriman stocks received good support. Brooklyn Rapid Transit yesterday turned in $700,000 to the Bureau of Assessment and Arrears of the tax department on account of the special franchise tax.

AND A FLORIDA FRUIT OR TRUCK FARM IS YOURS.

Own a profitable fruit or truck farm in Florida's best farm district and pay for it with little monthly savings. By intensive farming, with no previous experience, you can make it yield as much as $5,000 a year. This prolific land will grow from three to five crops each year, with a profit of from $100 to $800 an acre. Land will raise sweet potatoes, Irish potatoes, Bermudas, celery, lettuce, cabbage, tobacco, tomatoes, peanuts, pecans, strawberries, oranges, figs, grapes, rice, oats, cotton, corn, sugar cane—besides being ideal for stock, dairying, bees and poultry. Near big markets; three railroads; eight minutes from Lake City; 50 miles from Jacksonville—in the established profit belt. Climate is ideal, water pure—health, fresh air and sunshine abound; beautiful lakes; fishing and hunting galore. This is one of the few instances in which good land can still be procured at a low price. Lake City Board of Trade, Mayor, bankers, Congressmen and farmers will vouch for our statements regarding this beautiful land. The price of this land is $25 per acre, but the first allotment will be sold at $12.50 per acre, cash or little monthly payments. It can't last long at that price. Government as a Big Business

Such a speech from a great public executive is significant of a certain profound change in the public mind in its attitude toward the affairs of government.

GOVERNMENT IS CEASING TO BE A MERE UMPIRE OF PRIVATE RIGHTS AND IS COMING TO BE THOUGHT OF AS THE GREATEST OF ALL BUSINESS CONCERNS.

It is because of the growing popular demand for business methods in government that the immense wastes of old-fashioned administration are being brought to judgment.

A government that devotes itself to patriotism in the abstract may spend money like a drunken sailor—but a government that is a working partnership of the people should keep its account books straight.

What Mr. Taft said at Newark about the need of a budget-making power to work out a businesslike relation between the annual income and outgo of the public treasury is axiomatic and should make history.

That the House Committee on Ways and Means and the Senate Committee on Finance should plan for the public income and that other committees should spend the money—with only a vague consideration of the income—is certainly an anomaly in modern politics.

For the lack of a well-thought-out and duly proportioned budget the United States Government has been put in the position of a planless shopper—at the mercy of show windows and the suggestions that happen to come first.

The recent arrangement that lays upon the Secretary of the Treasury the obligation to make some provisionary figures is, of course, a step in the right direction—but not a very long step.

The budget should be formulated by those who have a right to speak in the levying of taxes and the making of appropriations.

It is conceivable that the proposed Congressional commission for the reorganization of the departments with a view to cutting down expenses may point the way to the creation of a standing joint committee of the two houses for the framing of the annual budget.

A New and Sound Public Policy

Senator Beveridge's bills for withdrawing all the coal lands of Alaska from entry—so far as mining privileges are concerned—are measures of vast public economy.

The plan proposed will not only SAVE hundreds of millions of dollars to the people, but will also introduce a NEW PRINCIPLE INTO POLITICS—a principle that will doubtless find many other profitable applications.

The proposal that public mining lands should be leased to the highest bidder—instead of being sold for a song or given away—is so obviously sound that it hardly needs vindication.

If the Government cannot take a cent from an individual without compensating him, what right has it to give him a million dollars without compensating his fellow citizens?

The Government is founded upon equity. And equity requires that public property shall not be alienated to any private person—SAVE ON CONDITIONS THAT ARE ADVANTAGEOUS TO THE COMMONWEALTH.

The coal mines of Alaska—which contain the future coal supply of half the continent—should pay wages enough to induce miners to work them and interest enough to induce capital to furnish the tools. The value of the mines, beyond the amount of such wages and interest, belongs to the people of the United States—and no government has a constitutional right to give it away.

In the light of so clear a principle it is easy to see that an equitable administration of the public domain—not only in Alaska, but in the country at large—should yield immense revenues to the people and lift much of the BURDEN OF TAXATION.

Decline in Waterway Traffic

The National Waterways Commission—composed of twelve Senators and Representatives, who have been studying the waterways question at home and in Europe—has offered a preliminary report to Congress.

It notes a remarkable decline for a quarter of a century in the traffic of our rivers and canals. Between 1880 and 1906 not only did the actual bulk of transportation by the Erie Canal, for example, decrease nearly fifty per cent., but also the relative amount carried by the canal as compared with competing railroads declined from eighteen per cent. of the total traffic to three per cent.

It appears from this report that the decline of the waterways is largely due to obstructive tactics of competing railroads—that could be and ought to be checked by an expansion of the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The railroads have put the river and canal lines out of business by carrying freight below cost until the boats have given up in despair. The report suggests that the Interstate Commerce Commission should have power to prescribe minimum railroad rates whenever it appears that the object of a railroad in reducing its rates is to destroy water competition.

The report says in effect that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Taft are wrong in assuming, as they have done in their waterways proposals, that the Government has power to grant franchises and exact tolls for the use of waterway privileges in navigable streams. But it is likely that the best legal opinion, as well as popular common sense, will stand with Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Taft in this matter.

Indeed, it is hard to see why the Government should not tax traffic as well as water-power rights in interstate streams—if the cost of opening the channels and keeping them open can be met in that way.

Instead of the local beggary and sectional jealousy of the annual Rivers and Harbors bill, it would seem to open the way to quick action and fair play in the deepening of river channels and the digging of certain projected interstate canals—if the cost of the improvement could, by some plan of toll-taking, be charged not to the whole country, but to the people who want the facilities and will make use of them.

The Boston Evening American guarantees to every advertiser MORE THAN 200,000 MORE CIRCULATION than any other evening newspaper in Boston, and MORE THAN 75,000 MORE CIRCULATION than all the other evening newspapers of Boston combined—giving these newspapers all the circulation they claim. UNJUST WORDS WE WOULD ALL LIKE TO RECALL

Written for the Boston American

By Dr. C. H. Parkhurst

Copyright, 1910, by American Journal-Examiner

WORDS were long ago called winged, and when once they fly forth they never return home again. They move on pinions that are forever unwearied. We can be sorry for the word we have spoken or written, but we cannot unsay it or erase it. We can shed bitter tears over it, but the tears will not wash it out. We can apologize for it, but once spoken always spoken.

And not only do they never return when once they have taken flight, they even grow by flying. They are like a ball of snow which by being rolled along the ground is constantly becoming bigger.

Then also they change their complexion when they are on the wing. A word that starts here and goes across the continent will not be the same word when it reaches San Francisco that it was when it left New York. Different ears hear the same thing differently.

The only safe word is the word that is never spoken.

There is no grown man but recalls words spoken years and years ago to friends and kindred—a father or a mother perhaps—that he would give considerable of his fortune to be able to recall. But the words are gone beyond reach, and so are the father and the mother. They may ere this have been erased from the memory of those to whom they were spoken, but not from our memory. They often leave a deeper pain in the heart of the one who utters them than in the heart of the one to whom they are uttered. It is said that when a stinging bee leaves its sting in the human flesh the bee is the greater sufferer of the two. The flesh suffers for a little while and then recovers, but the loss of the sting—so it is said—costs the bee its life.

For some of our sins we are punished as we go along.

Songs of the Rail

By MILLE TONE

"When She Struck His Eye He Knew She Had the Goods."

I.

Sat a dub who liked to eye up all the girls;
And his wink was on its job, when a nifty little squab
He espied across the car, with saucy curls.
He took in her patent puffs, fell for all her other bluffs,
And he nearly winked his winker from his head,
Till a certain party to someone else, no matter who,
These little words of comment quickly said:

CHORUS.

He is just a poor old toiler,
Merely that and nothing more,
With a wife from somewhere way back in the woods.
Ah, but at that classy broiler
He has rubbered o'er and o'er,
When she struck his eye he knew she had the goods.

II.

It was just about that time that his wife rose in her prime,
He had winked one careless wink she hadn't missed,
And the first that hubby got was 300 pounds of swat
Right upon that batting optic, from her fist.
Then he did not speak a word, for the wallop was a bird,
And it sent him in a hurry to the hay,
When that same old nosey bloke to his friend then up and spoke
These soft and gentle words which he did say:

CHORUS.

He is just a poor old toiler,
Down and out upon the floor;
When he wakes he'll beat it backward to the woods,
For he's lost his taste for broilers,
And he'll never wink no more,
When she struck his eye he knew she had the goods.
